Eighty Native Trees to be Represented at the Paris Exhibition.

James Macoun, of the Canadian Geological Survey, has been intrusted with the task of preparing the forestry display of the Dominion of Canada at the Paris Exposition of 1900.

When interviewed he stated that since a special forestry building had been provided by the Exposition commissioners, the display of Canadian woods would necessarily be separate from the main body of Canada's exhibit. In the forestry building Canada has been originally allotted a small space, but on its being represented to the French Government that Canada was one of the two or three great timber-producing countries of the world, the space was increased to 1,000 square feet which Mr. Macoun regards as still inadequate for a full presentation of Canada's forest wealth. The spaces allotted to the other nations are not known; the Canadian exhibit will adjoin that of Great Britain, which is to have 1,000 square feet.

As Great Britain has but nine native species of commercial value, whereas Canada has upwards of 80, Canada is to be represented as a nation by itself, and not as an adjunct to Great Britain.

An important feature of Canada's display will be a series of exhibits of 80 native trees of commercial value. This, of course, does not include domestic fruit trees, but the wild cherry, the wood of which is "perhaps the most valuable sylvan product Canada possesses, will be represented. There will also be a collection of graphic specimens of commercial timber in every form, from the section of a saw log to semi-manufactured products such as hubs, spokes and deals, will be on view. Square timber will be an especially important feature.

It is expected that the Canadian display will be greater in range than that of any other nation, with the exception of the United States. The latter can show even a greater variety on account of her tropical possessions. The only other country which approaches the number of the North American continent in the variety of commercial timbers is Japan, Norway and Sweden, which are big timber-producers, are limited to such soft woods as pine and spruce.

The end in view throughout the Canadian display will be that of extending the export in timber in this country.

Mr. Southworth was in receipt of a letter bearing on the latter matter, though not directly bearing on Canada's display in Paris. The Imperial Institute in London has made some inquiries made some time ago, which states that there is a good market in England for tamarac gum for medicinal purposes. Mr. Southworth will send specimens. He will also send to the Imperial Institute specimens of Canadian suanac, which is largely indigenous to Canada. The suanac is used in Sicily as a poultice, supplies the world with this produce, and Mr. Southworth is of opinion that large quantities of the shrub which is now numbering many acres of good agricultural land, may be put to some use.

Smut in Fall Wheat.

The grain dealers of Toronto are greatly exercised over the appearance of smut in the new crop. Saturday afternoon an emergency meeting of the grain section of the Board of Trade was held to consider the matter.

President McLaughlin explained that he had written to the Ontario Agricultural College, asking what remedies could be got for the prevention of smut, and had been greatly surprised to learn that the pest could easily be exterminated. After discussion, the following resolution was passed:

TRAGEDY AT GILBERT PLAINS

Fred Johnson, Farmer, Kills His Wife and Three Children.

He Then Killed Himself—The Murderer Was a Man of Low Spirits and Lately Spoke of Ending His Life—Parties Came from Eramosa—Tragedy Made a Sensation at Guelph Where Johnson Was Known.

Another matter that was also discussed was the best way of getting rid of the pea bug, which is doing a great damage to the crop. The only action taken on this was the passing of the following resolution:

The grain section of the Board of Trade, therefore, urge all farmers who have this year been troubled with the pea bug the importance of not growing peas for a year or two.

Iron to Advance Again.

From Philadelphia comes the news that the entire iron trade is threatened with another advance in prices early in September, as a result of the completion of the section of the Lehigh River which is to be completed in twelve months. The demand for mill and furnace products continues to be in excess of production. Large purchases of steel and iron have been made. Eramosa will advance 100% delivery. Bills are at $30 at mill and product oversold for months. Iron is moving from $44 towards $50. Forge pig inquiries call for over 100,000 tons. Demand for steel has assumed such proportions that fances are to be made to meet the demand. It will have to go over for want of material. Railroad requirements are the most serious matters at present, and equipment capacity from locomotive and car shop is being severely taxed.

Late News Items.

William H. Tighe, a prominent grain and commission merchant of Chatham, Ont., has been missing since Thursday last.

The chief of the Ottawa police force has recommended to the Police Commissioners that they purchase an automobile patrol wagon.

Burglars entered L. Martin's hotel, Cabaragui, near Kingston, Ont., and he was asleep, stole from his cash register $100.

St. Peter's Church, Hamilton, Ont., has been closed by Bishop Dunnigan owing to the paralytic shown by the congregation to the suspended rector, Rev. Thomas Geoghegan.

Owing to the development of five cases of yellow fever among the United States troops at Cabanas fortress, Costa Rica, the contingent there has been reduced to about a mile army.

Isaac Richardson, a prominent drover of Millbrook, Ont., has disappeared and is reported to have taken the proceeds of several shipments, about $8000, with him. The farmers placed great confidence in Richardson, and he was reputed to be financially sound.

The privilege of exporting deer accorded to fur-skin shorthorn under license in Canada, has been extended so as to permit the exportation of deer "raised or bred upon lands owned or held by a company or association of persons of which he (the exporter) is a member."

Not a Close Observer.

"It seems almost incredible," said the railroad man, "but I saw a man the other day that couldn't give an intelligent description of his wife. He came to the office to get transportation for her, to which he was entitled, and under the present rules we must have a description of the person that is going to be transported."

"On the margin of the ticket are places where the agent can punch out a very good description of the person that is entitled to use the ticket in his possession."

"I asked the man first, how old his wife was. He could not tell within five years."

"Next I asked him how tall she was. The best I could ascertain was that she was not very tall; neither was she very short. I punctuated the word 'medium' and let it go at that."

"Next I asked the man what the color of his wife's eyes was. He studied for a full half minute and said: he was sure that his wife was blue."

"Only thing this husband was sure of was that his wife was slim."

Book's Lordly Tip.

It required such a man as Theodore Hook to cope successfully with the rascality of the gentlemen of the hall, in contradistinction to the road, and on one occasion, at all events, he proved himself equal to the task.

It is related that one when dining out he, before the entertainment began, would fasten from the mint and then when proceeding after the festivities to his carriage he discovered several servants, including the cook awaiting him in the hall, he forthwith slipped a coin into the hand of the latter. The man glanced at it, noticed the size and bowed low in thanks, under the impression that he was a sovereign richer, while Theodore, dispensing largesse of a like nature to the other servants, went on his way rejoicing, and did he cease doing so when, as he stepped into his carriage, one of the footmen, who had discovered the real value of the pothouse, ran out, saying, "Sir, I think you have made a mistake!"

"Not at all, my good man," replied the humorist, with gracious wave of the hand. "I never give less. Coachman, drive on."

Then He Was Mad.

A Scotch university professor, irritated to find that his students had got into the habit of placing their hats and canes on his desk instead of in the cloakroom, announced that the next article of the kind placed there would be destroyed. Some days later, the professor was called for a moment from the classroom. A student slipped into his private room and emerged with the professor's hat, which he placed conspicuously on the desk, while his fellow-students at the time.

The professor, on returning, saw the hat thought some really obstinate student had been delivered into his hands, and taking out his knife, he cut the offending article to pieces, while vainly attempting to conceal the smile of triumph that played about his countenance. He was in a very bad temper the next day.

Likes to Be Kicked.

Hall Caine professes that he likes to be kicked, as long as the kicking is done in public and makes him conspicuous or notorious. He says in the London Mail: "Even the silliest personal reference I ever see, however inspired by pithy feelings, seems to me by implication a tribute and compliment, being a recognition of the fact that I am a factor worth counting with and an adversary worth fighting. And when the most false, the most mean and the most belittling of the kind has ceased to appear I shall know that I am no longer of the least account."

A Cold Night in China.

One of the facts that we ineffaceably impress into my memory during my first winter in Newchowang was the finding on one morning about New Year's time 25 masses of ice, each mass having been a living man at 10 o'clock the preceding night.

The thermometer was a good bit below zero (F.). The men had just left the opium den, where they had been enjoying themselves. The keen air sent them to sleep, and they never wakened—North China Herald.

THAT FIRST SIN.

Figures to Show That Adam and Eve Ate Eight Million Apples.

Probably our great ancestor, Adam, little thought of the trouble he would create posterity by eating an apple when now the question as to how many apples he really did eat is a new difficulty.

How many apples did Adam and Eve eat? Was it one or was it millions? When the subject was first mooted the editor very naturally replied, "Why, one, of course."

"No," said the assistant editor, "Eve ate one, and Adam ate one, too; that's all."

Then the subeditor passed along a slip of paper on which was written: "Eve $1 and Adam $1, making 102."

But the poet, who is a man of imagination, capped this with, "Eve $1 and Adam $12—$83."

Then the publisher tried his hand, and his contribution was, "Eve $1.42 see how it tasted, and Adam $12, equals $8.54."

Then the humorist, who dislikes being surpassed as much as he hates barbers, came up to the scratch again, with "Eve $1.42 see how it tasted, and Adam $24.22 keep her company—$30.84."

Then the editor, who had been listening, quietly handed in his contribution, "Eve $1.42 see how it tasted, and Adam $12.24-210-der a husband was he to see her eat alone. This equals $132.352."

"But he had another object," said the poet, "Eve $1.42 satisfied her curiosity, and Adam $12.24-240-Eve in her position. That makes $132.382."—Philadelphia Record.

That Second Chapter.

The new pastor was preaching his first sermon. In the middle of it he stopped abruptly and asked:

"How many of you have read the Bible?"

Fifty hands went up.

"Good," said the pastor. "Now, how many of you have read the second chapter of Jude?"

Twenty-five hands went up.

A wan smile overspread the divine's face.

"That's also good; but when you go home read that chapter again, and you will doubtless learn something to your interest."

There is only one chapter in the book of Jude.—Guthrie (O. T.) Leader.

Sound Transmission.

Water is a very good transmitter of sound. A scientist of the name of Caldeira made some experiments in Lake Geneva, Switzerland, to demonstrate the power of sound to travel long way in water. A clock was made to strike under the water and was heard to a distance of 12 miles. In a second experiment the striking of a clock was heard to a distance of 27 miles.

Not a Faith Cure.

Faith never worked a miracle in the case of Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure. It is the wonderful curative properties of the remedy that does the work. Mr. S. O. Taylor, Charlevoix, Ont., suffered with rheumatism in the back (Lumbago) for five years, and was cured of it by Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure completed his cure. He has been free from pain since. This preparation is used internally. One bottle contains ten days' treatment, so cents a bottle. For sale at all drug stores.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

H. BRISCOE, ISSUER OF MARRIAGE LICENSES, Deseronto, Ontario.

"It is better to be born lucky than rich," Messrs. Mackenzie & Mann took a contract to build a railroad up in the Yukon country. While other men were risking their lives in a search for the yellow metal one of Mackenzie & Mann's graders unearthed a gold mine. The lucky contractors have refused a good round sum for their find.

Dr. Fletcher of the experimental farm, who is a close student of entomology, comes out with a statement in the daily papers to the effect that the "kissing bug" is a myth. Dr. Fletcher says that all of the specimens sent to him have proved to be but common, everyday beetles, the only variation being in the size of the bug. However, many people will believe in the "kissing bug," no matter what proof may be brought forward that such a thing does not exist.

While other editors are pining for the pine woods or cooling breezes of the seashore the editor of the London (Ont.) Daily News gets a hustle on himself and produces a midsummer number—a thing of beauty, encased in an artistic cover, with halftones of an elegant character scattered all through it. The illustrations depict street scenes, public men and public places, and all through the 28 pages of this creditable piece of Canadian journalism there is not a dull spot. We wish the London News man success in his efforts and hope he may get out another special edition.

School reopens on Tuesday. The pupils will come trooping back full of renewed health and activity to engage once more in the pursuit of knowledge. The long vacation is a good thing for the scholars. It gives them a chance to be out in the open air, which helps to build up the system. Growing children when confined indoors during the hot season drop and fall like flowers deprived of sunlight. After the mid-summer rest and recreation the brain of the pupil is more receptive and assimilates facts with a readiness not to be expected if he were confined in a school room during the torrid season. And the vacation is a good thing from a physical standpoint. We all know that, and the children appreciate its advantages. They are all ready and willing that school should begin next Tuesday.

Those who have had a notion that the Klondike is a region where gold is so plentiful that the wayfarers stumble over it would do well to read the letter of Robt. W. Geddes, which appears in another column. Mr. Geddes was in the frozen gold fields long enough to learn that the search for gold in the Yukon is a task the strongest man would not willingly set for himself were it not for the alluring prospects which, like the ignis-fatuus, shine with golden promises, but which lure one astray. For every one who has made a fortune in the north there are thousands whose health has been seriously impaired and whose finances are at the lowest ebb. Months of privation and ill-health, with never a sign of "color" is the fate of most of the gold-seekers in the wilderness along the banks of the frozen Yukon.

Now comes a rector of an Episcopal church (Rev. John Grath, of Narragansett Pier, Mass.) who, while preaching at a summer resort near Montreal, said the Bible is not an inspired book any more than are the works of Shakespeare and other noted authors. He declared that the stories of Adam and Eve, Jonah and the whale, etc., were but myths and legends. This youthful divine declared his belief that the inspiration of Browning and Shakespeare differed only in degree from that of Isaiah and Paul. The Bible, he declared, was simply the literature of the Jewish people and that everything contained therein should be interpreted in that light. After this unusual sermon had been brought to a close several gentlemen in the congregation arose and questioned the accuracy of the statements from the pulpit. If the Bible is not a Heaven-inspired book then how is it the prophets were able to foretell events which have happened centuries after they lived? Contemporaneous literature of the time of the Apostles speaks of their deeds and the miracles they wrought. There is no lack of proof anywhere that the Bible is not an inspired book, and all the mouthings of notoriety-seekers to the rev. John Grath will not affect the universal belief in it one jot or tittle.

Deseronto Market Prices.

Summer apples are coming in these days, and the fruit and vegetables will be classed in that category. Melons are also in evidence. Pumpkins are showing off in bright yellow contrast to the brilliancy of the tomato. Altogether the market these days is an interesting place from the horticultural point of view, and the articles displayed.

Vegetables—onions, 9¢ to $1 per bag; corn, 5¢ per dozen for ordinary; 10¢ to 15¢ per dozen for turnips; carrots, 4¢ to 6¢ per dozen; turnips, 35¢ to 40¢ per bushel; potatoes, 75¢ per bag; crab apples, 10¢ per peck; cabbage, 2¢ to 7¢ per head; cucumbers, 5¢ per bushel; celery, 2¢ to 3¢ per bunch; parsnips, 5¢ per bunch; radishes, 2¢ to 3¢ per bunch; parsley, 5¢ per bunch; summer savory, 5¢ per bunch.

Apples should be had from 10 to 25¢ per peck, according to quality. Peaches brought 20¢ per peck, with the big Bartletts retailing at 40¢. Plums were 8 to 10¢ per quart, or a basket from 30¢ to 60¢. Cabbage, 10¢ to 15¢ per bushel; onions, $1.25 per basket; and white flesh peaches 60¢ to 80¢. Melons—Cuban, cream, 10¢; apiee; musk, 8 to 10¢; water, 15 to 30¢. Some choice grapes brought 10¢ per lb.

Butter was brought 25¢ per lb., and eggs were worth about 13¢ per dozen. Very good ham at 10¢ per pound. Cider vinegar retailed at 25¢ per gallon.

Meats—Pork, $5.35 to $5.50 per 100 lbs; 7 to 9¢ per lb; beef, four-quarter, 40¢ per lb.; 10¢ per lb.; mutton, 10¢ to 12¢ per lb.; 10¢ per lb.; 10¢ per lb.; chickens, 40¢ to 50¢ per pair.

Grain—Wheat, 60¢; oats, 25¢; buckwheat, 50¢; peat, 60 cents.

The Fire Brigade.

The members of the fire brigade held a church service, the chief object of which was to elect a delegate to the convention of volunteer fire departments, to be held in Toronto during this week. They chose as their representative Martin B. Ker.

A telegram was received from the mayor authorizing the chief, on behalf of the fire department, to expend up to $150 in shirts, belts and caps for a dress uniform for the brigade. This sum has been contributed by the Standard Chemical Co. and the Eaton Co. The mayor hopes to collect still further sums for the maintenance of the interests of the brigade.

The new hook and ladder truck is expected to arrive next week.

The Public Schools.

In last week's edition The Tribune stated that the public schools would reopen on Monday, September 4. That day is a public holiday, therefore schools will not resume until the following day, Tuesday, September 5.

The junior third class will occupy the room hitherto used by the junior fourth in the High School building. The senior second will be found in the room hitherto used by the junior third. Hence the pupils of those classes will govern themselves accordingly.

Tuesday morning, Junior fourth and senior fourth pupils will assemble in the principal's room. The other forms will remain in the rooms for a few days.

During the vacation, fresh paint has been liberally applied to the interior of the schools and a number of other needed improvements made.

C. M. B. A. Picnic.

Next Monday, on Foresters' Island, C. M. B. A. Branch 85, of Deseronto, will have a contemplated picnic. Complete arrangements have been made to accommodate a vastly increased number of picnickers than has been. The steamer Armenia will do nothing all day but take people over to the island. There will be music there, there will be a good programme of sports to be enjoyed after the addresses. In the evening the grounds were illuminated with Chinese lanterns and an immense display of fireworks was made.

Oronhyatekha Honored.

A despatch from Chicago, dated August 28, says—Dr. Oronhyatekha, a Mohawk Indian, has been elected president of the National Fraternal Congress.

During the afternoon Dr. Oronhyatekha replied to charges printed recently in a fraternal paper. In the course of his speech he said: "I do not mind such a speech as directed to me because I am a Mohawk Indian and am proud of it, and sometimes I feel like thanking God I am an Indian, and not like some white men I know."

The delegates applauded the speech of the president. During his short reply to the charges he said:

"It is expected that the steamer Armenia will give an exhibition and parade on Main street at 9 a.m., on Monday."

The promenade concert in the early evening will prove a big attraction. On her last trip the Armenia will leave the island at 8 o'clock.

Scholarships for Queen's.

The two Government members for Kingston have each given a matriculation scholarship to Queen's University, the value of twenty-five dollars. Mr. British's will is known as "The Merchant's will," and will be awarded for general proficiency and junior matriculation.

The New Ponton Trial.

Dr. Chamberlain, inspector of prisons, reports that complete arrangements have now been made at Cobourg for the reception of the prisoners from the trial with the Napanee bank robbery trial, which is to take place there on September 19. Some general improvements have been made, and the jail is now strong enough even to hold Pare.

Salvation Army.

For the past few weeks the local corps of the Salvation Army have been looking forward to their harvest thanksgiving festival. Their target was set for a good $35; they have reached it at last. Captain Burtchell and the many kind friends who contributed so cheerfully to the harvest festival

Hymenean.

A very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday evening of the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Dan McDonald, and their youngest daughter, Phoebe Annie was united in marriage to George Thomas Dennis. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. G. C. Conroy, and the presence of a large number of invited guests. The wedding march was played by Miss Chaplin, assisted by the whole company, and rendered medleys, including the special scenes, and a choice of the gay, and charming, as well as the serious.

Miss Ella Canon, who with Dan McDonald, were entrusted with the duties and honors of bridesmaid and matron of honor.

After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding breakfast was served in the spacious dining-room. The presents were full and the bridegroom's hat was a high esteem which she was assisted by the community. The happy couple took the midnight train for Toronto and other western points. They will make their home in Deseronto.

Protestant Orphans' Home.

In Pierton Wednesday of last week the Protestant Orphans' Home was formally opened. Members of the Orange order, True Blues and allied societies took part in the proceedings.

The weather was so bad that could be done, all the work was done on the inside.

At 1 p.m. the grand procession started through the streets to the grounds of the orphanage, where addresses were delivered by men eminent in the order.

Grand Fitzgerald took the microphone and in his speech spoke of the Loyalty Blue order in erecting the magnificent building to be dedicated to an orphanage. One of the highest of human efforts was to help those in need, and the members of the order made an appeal to all to uphold and sustain this noble work. He reminded his hearers that at least $1,200 was required to complete the improvements already entered upon.

John H. Witt of the Protestant Orphans' Home expressed the hope of the members of the order of the gospel of Christ. It emphasizes the highest principles of philanthropy and educational progress, as well as good citizenship.

Rev. Mr. Rice of Belleville expressed his appreciation of the efforts of the members of the order, and reminded his hearers that he had been instrumental in securing a grant for the institution, and he hoped it would prove a success.

W. Bouler said the work done by the True Blues met with his hearty approval, and he donated $10 on the spot to help it along. Other speakers were heard, and all approved of the good work.

The meeting closed by singing "Onward, Christian Soldiers," and the benediction.

A good programme of sports was to be enjoyed after the addresses. In the evening the grounds were illuminated with Chinese lanterns and an immense display of fireworks was made.

NEWS OF THE LAKES.

The Nicholls carried lumber to Oswego this week.

The schooner Mary carried lumber to Oswego this week.

The steamer Eliza White cleared for Charlotte in light trim.

The steamer Nile delivered a cargo of shingles at Morrisston, N.Y.

The schooner Monogram took a cargo of lumber to Belleville yesterday.

The revolving light at Battle Island is temporarily out of repair, and a fixed white light is shown at this point at present.

The steam barge Seguin arrived in the harbor yesterday and anchored while waiting for the D. D. Calvin to unload at the ore docks.

The steamer V. E. B. and the Two Brothers took ties to Charlotte, N.Y., while another schooner named Two Brothers took ties to Fairhaven, the schooner Annandale took ties to Charlottetown.

Vessels are amazed at the phenomenal activity in the lake transportation, particularly considering the present facilities for handling cargoes, the earnings of the vessels were never so great as now.

The steam barge Calvin, with 760 tons of iron ore, and her consort the Ceylon, with 1,527 tons, arrived from Presque Isle the early part of the week, after unloading at the ore dock cleared in light trim for Cleveland, Ohio.

The steamer Sir Leonard Tilley was burned to the water's edge on Lake Erie last week. The fire caught in the engine room, and the spread of the flames was so rapid the engineers did not have time to stop the machinery. The crew and passengers were all saved, being taken aboard the schooner Merritt, which the Tilley had in tow. The wheel of the Tilley was lashed, and she continued to run in a circle for about an hour before the engines stopped. The steamer was valued at $50,000, fully insured.

Some faint idea of what was accomplished by the German wrecking crew, who succeeded in floating the great American liner Paris off the Manacles, on the coast of Cornwall, will be realized when it is stated that more than 15,000 tons of granite blocks were laid away under water. On account of the danger of permanently damaging the vessel only small boats could be made, and as each chunk of rock was loosed bawlers were made fast to them by divers and steamers dragged them away. The last particular piece of work was when they were called to blow away the last piece upon which the steamer was resting. The pumps on the Paris would not work and it was necessary to resort to the powerful pumps of the Berthilde, one of the wrecking steamers which sucked out the water at the rate of 4,500 tons an hour.

High Commission to meet.
Montreal, Aug. 29.—The French's resident correspondent in Washington sends the following: A member of Congress authorized in the most positive manner yesterday the statement that a virtual understanding has been reached between the Washington Administration and the Canadian members of the joint high commission, and that the meetings of the body will be renewed in November.

Two Little Girls Drowned.
Smith's Falls, Ont., Aug. 30.—Yesterday afternoon Annie Menagh, daughter of Robert Menagh, and Sophia Galligan, daughter of George Galligan, two small girls of about 10 years of age, had gone in bathing, together with two other girls, in the Rideau River, and, getting beyond their depth, were both drowned.

A Sure Winner.
A buzzard who found a freshly killed hare and was about to beat it away to a tree top to be eaten at leisure, was addressed by a fox who came running up with:

"Ah, now, but I mistook you for the eagle and wanted a word with you."

The buzzard was flattered and offered to reward the head of the hare. As she did so the wolf came up and observed:

"Well, well, but who ever saw the buzzard looking so fierce and so proud as today? Really, now, but I took you for the condor."

The buzzard cocked the buzzard again, and to show her good will she divided the body of the hare with the wolf. She had said that she must be off, when the jackal came trotting up and exclaimed:

"Upon my word, but I must have dust in my eyes. I was sure that my friend here was the ostrich, and I was going to ask her for a feather. Mrs. Buzzard, my compliments!"

The buzzard grinned and giggled and tried to look shy, and meanwhile the jackal ate up the other half of the hare.

"Heres—how's this—where's my man?" cried the jackal, as she got to see what had happened.

"Oh, we took the meat and as you have the taffy," replied the jackal as he licked his chops and walked off.

Moral.—When craft will not avail and argument goes for naught, battery will always win.

Filed It on the Princess.
In China it is etiquette to regard one as older than he or she really is. When the Prince and Princess Henry of Prussia visited Shanghai, they met a notable mandarin, one of whose first questions to the prince—this being an invariable matter of Chinese politeness—was:

"How old are you?"
"I am little more than 30," answered the prince, smiling.

"Indeed!" said the mandarin. "Your highness appears 50."

The mandarin then turned to the Interpreter—Herr Vogt, a German, and inquired the princess' age. She interpreter, "Thirty-two." The interpreter interpreted, and the mandarin made a remark in Chinese evidently intended to be complimentary. The interpreter blushed uneasily and hesitated to translate the remark. The prince saw the difficulty and laughingly commanded:

"Put out with it, Vogt!"
He says, "The interpreter then translated to the princess, "That your highness looks like 60!"

He had meant it well, and of course the princess had sense enough not to take it ill.

Should Women Smoke?
I have no earthly objection to women smoking; only, if they do smoke, they should smoke seriously. Most of them take a little with a cigarette. Now, that scarcely amounts to smoking at all. If they really mean it, let them take to cigars and pipes.

I know a distinguished lady, a Polish countess—what is her name? Countess? Countess?—oh, well, Thingamajig—stands in "sky" anyhow—and I respect that woman. She genuinely smokes, and no mistake about it. There is no playing there. She looks on it as a sacred duty. She has a long pipe with a wooden stem and the bark on, and a fine big bowl—a regular man's pipe. When she was visiting me, she just loaded up and smoked, and loaded up and smoked, and loaded up and smoked again. She meant business.

I know another lady who has a long Turkish pipe, and she, too, means business. If women are ever to be genuine smokers, that is the way they must go to work.—Mark Twain.

Catarrh Can Be Cured. Japanese Catarrh Cure

has successfully coped with this most dangerous disease, and cured to stay cured.

Mrs. A. Knott, of Brantville, Ont., writes: "A few years ago, my father would have given me a thousand dollars, and I would have been free from the constant pain and torment he had had for catarrh for years. My head was stupefied, and my breath was very impure. I had almost a constant pain in my head, and I could not sleep at night. I could not have any permanent relief until using Japanese Catarrh Cure. From that time I have had no trouble, and I could breath freely and easily. Its effect upon my health was truly wonderful, purifying and curing me of the terrible, unceasing pain, and during the past year since using this remedy have not had a single attack. I am now in a ton highly recommended in and known of several others in our neighborhood. I can assure you that it is a safe, reliable, and effective remedy. Price, 20 cents. Six boxes, with cure guaranteed, for $2.00. A free sample sent to any address. Express & Freight Co., Ltd., The Griffiths & Macpherson Co., 115 Church Street, Toronto. [145]

Scrofula. Another permanent cure by B.B.B. after two doctors failed.

Ask any doctor and he will tell you that, next to cancer, scrofula is one of the hardest diseases to cure.

Yet Burdock Blood Bitters applied externally to the parts affected and taken internally cured Rev. Wm. Stout, of Kirkton, Ont., permanently, after many prominent physicians failed; Cured Mrs. W. Bennett, of Cresson's Corners, Ont., permanently, when everyone thought she would die. Now Mr. H. H. Forest, Windsor Mills, P.Q., states his case as follows:

"After having used Burdock Blood Bitters for scrofula in the blood, I feel duty to make known the results. I was treated by two skilled physicians, but they failed to cure me. I had running sore on my hands and legs which I could get nothing to heal them. I tried B.B.B. This remedy healed them completely and permanently, leaving the skin and flesh sound and whole."

A Fateful Abduction

BY MAY AGNES FLEMING.

Author of "A Wonderful Woman," "Sharing Her Crime," "Maudie Percy's Secret," "A Wife's Tragedy," "Queen of the Isle."

"When Madeline was about sixteen, there came a gay young English nobleman to our village. He called himself Sir Walter Percy; but, though he was a rich man, he had no title. His manner was frank and gay, and his eyes were bright and clear. His effect upon my health was truly wonderful, purifying and curing me of the terrible, unceasing pain in my head, and during the past year since using this remedy have not had a single attack. I am now in a ton highly recommended in and known of several others in our neighborhood. I can assure you that it is a safe, reliable, and effective remedy. Price, 20 cents. returned in triumph to my own apartment. The next day, disguised as a beggar, I visited the house, and by a few artful inquiries, learned that the pretty lady in black, whom she was called, was the maid of honor to the young woman who was in charge of a little girl, a daughter of the lady, whom she went out. Satisfied that my object, which was to steal the child, could be easily accomplished, I took the child, and, as the maid was still on the day on which she was to visit the milliner with her work.

"It came at last, and, when she was out of sight, I went boldly to her apartment. She had no idea whom she could not tell. She had no idea whom she could not tell. Some secret feeling she could not resist forced her to come—perhaps the hope of meeting her lover, whom she still loved as passionately as ever. But she never told him of her secret, for she thought I would kill him if I did. I turned to the maid, and, smiling at her, said, "Tell the pretty lady," said I, when she comes, that Mother Wall came for the baby. She may like to know."

"The girl replied, and I quitted the house, for the maid was in the room. I was in the world was in my pocket. I went down to one of the piers. A ship was there ready to start for England. I took passage on board, and, in a short time, the ship of France was lost to view."

"I had a little time to wait for Sir Walter had, by Madeline's desire taught her, and, listening to them, had learned, too. I determined to support myself as a fortune-teller. I knew there were always plenty of fools who would give up anything for a trifling sum. I was a rich, childless old lady at Mrs. Rochester, and her—was struck by her youth and singular beauty; and learning that she was an orphan, poor and friendless, adopted her, with the usual impulse of a good heart, as her own child.

"Here she lived for some years; and here the Earl of Dancemore met her, and fell deeply in love with her at first sight. He urged her to marry him; so did Mrs. Rochester, and Madeline, who was still a child, was in the end sent to Sir Walter.

"She had been told that he was a fortune-teller, and, listening to him, I was particularly a fortune-teller. I possessed a thorough knowledge of human nature; and, as I could easily read the simpletons who resorted to me in crowds, was able to guess what was in their minds. I was a fortune-teller, and, as I was a fortune-teller, I was a fortune-teller."

"I was a fortune-teller, and, as I was a fortune-teller, I was a fortune-teller. I was a fortune-teller, and, as I was a fortune-teller, I was a fortune-teller."

to the ground. The earl attempted to rescue her, but, as he was a man of the old Moar Manor, and he dared not put his threats in execution.

"I told her perfectly true that Madeline would immediately return to me. I was not mistaken; the next night, accompanied by a little French girl, she came to me in my hut on the moon. There I learned from her her history. After the loss of her mother, she had been sold into slavery—she had been sold into slavery—for she thought I would kill them.

"It came at last, and, when she was out of sight, I went boldly to her. Her name was Alice, and she was a child of Sir Walter Percy; but, though she was a child, she had no idea whom she could not tell.

"The girl replied, and I quitted the house, for the maid was in the room. I was in the world was in my pocket. I went down to one of the piers. A ship was there ready to start for England. I took passage on board, and, in a short time, the ship of France was lost to view."

"Tell the pretty lady," said I, when she comes, that Mother Wall came for the baby. She may like to know."

separated in life, so strangely united in death.

CHAPTER XXV.

"My love," said Kate, gently and sadly, "she is dead."

He stared like one bewildered, but spoke not.

"She needs not your forgiveness now; she is at rest," said Kate, earnestly taking his hand.

"Dead! Madeline, Walter, all dead!"

He looked bewildered.

"Not dead, but buried there are many still alive to have you. And this child, will you not love her for the sake of the dead? Come here," Madeline," said Kate, turning toward her.

"Dead! Madeline, Walter, all dead!"

He turned quickly forward and stood beside her.

Madeline bent back her long, black hair, and her eyes filled as she met the large, sad, beweeping, dark eyes—so like, so like those whose light was quenched long ago.

"I've lost child, too, and now I'm alone."

He Ate His Fill

A local clergyman is telling a joke on himself. He went to Chicago on business and was asked by a family in his church to call on a married daughter there. The pastor called and received a hospitable welcome. They urged him to come to dinner, but he had an engagement. They remarked, "Well, we'll not you eat at a little luncheon." The waiter pointed on a place which had a small table on which were a small dish of salad, some bread and fruit. "Well, I don't care if I do," replied the caller, who drew up a chair and began an onslaught on the provisions. He fancied they had been arranged expressly for him, and it was only after he had got through that he noticed the blank looks of the family. In fact, he had devoured the entire luncheon which had all devoured to eat.

"Madam, what must you think of me?" he exclaimed to the hostess. "But let me beg of you not to judge all Kentuckians by me. I am the sole stupid one in our state."

He was equal to the lady whose hostess showed her a dish of water cress at a side table just before dinner was served. Thinking it had just been purchased, she stuck her hand in the dish and took a handful of it only to find it dressed with French salad dressing and prepared to accompany the birds at the meat.

He Noticed the Likeness.

A Parisian swell recently had a crayon picture of himself made, which he afterward pretended to find fault with.

"It does not show the slightest resemblance to me," said he, "and I will not take it."

The artist protested, but all to no avail.

After the dandy had left the painter added to the portrait a magnificent pair of ass' ears and exhibited it in the window, thus altered, to the gaze of the curious public.

It hadn't long exposed when the dandy entered the artist's studio in a towering rage and, finding that threats amounted to nothing, he at last offered to buy it, etc. at a considerable advance on the original price.

"It won't strange you don't recognize your resemblance to the picture at first," said the painter, "but I knew you'd notice the likeness as soon as I added those ears"—Spars Moments.

Marriage by Halters.

Among ignorant people of English birth it is fully believed that a wife bought with money or goods is legally married if the purchaser leads her all the way home by a halter.

Mr. Baring Gould, the English antiquarian, tells of a village poet known to him who bought a wife for a half crown and led her 12 miles to his cottage.

The squire and the rector protested to the village post that he was not legally wedded.

"He is, you see," he replied. "I'll take a wife with a never took the halter off her neck when the door-sill and the door was shut."

The latest instances of such weddings occurred in 1858 and 1859, when women were sold in Little Horton and in Dindley. In these cases a thin ribbon took the place of the straw halter.

But, gentle ladies, the symbolic idea was the same.

THE SOWING.

One wept that his harvest was small,
With little of fruit or grain.
While his neighbor, with bairns a' gairn' a'gairn,
Said, "How much thins thou?" I said, "Friend,
A handful of wheat, less or more,
Is all that I have sown, but the sows would bend
To the sickles from such scanty store?
Who sparingly soweth must look
To a bountiful harvest." I said,
"Tis only the bountiful sower can reap
A bountiful harvest again.
A bairn, like me, to the wind,
For harvest time comin' to be here;
Sow with bountiful hands lest thou weep at the last.

When the Heart Is Young

How an Organist Sought Love
Through a Medium and Found It Through Accident.

—Illustrated.

The vestry door of the church of St. John the Evangelist opened about an hour after the Sunday morning service, and a spruce figure passed slowly down the asphalt walk to the street pavement. It was M. Auguste, the little organist.

M. Auguste had come to a determination within the past hour. The sun of prosperity was beginning to shine upon this middle aged Alsatian, and he felt the elation of spirit. He had a good position as organist; he had a large music class; he had composed a successful march; he had a bank account. He would have a wife, he would share his happiness, he would make a fortune.

Practical thought came back to him with the eating of his Sunday restaurant dinner. His pint bottle of cheap wine stimulated him to an act courageous. He would seek the wife of the minister and ask her help to find him a suitable mate. He had heard that she made many matches among the church people.

In this state of mind he went to the house of the minister, Dr. Dahl, and was announced to the wife of that gentleman, to her great surprise. She had merely a speaking acquaintance with the spruce little organist, but she came to him at once and expected to hear a tale of woes or distress. Her surprise may be imagined when the excited Alsatian, in a compound of bad English, German and French, poured forth his heart's desires, his thoughts, his hopes, his fears, his fears of his finding him a proper life companion. The helplessness of the task struck him at once, but the earnestness of the organist gained her sympathies. She made many matches among the church people.

"Madame, you must be kind, very kind. You are very kind, I am the poor organist, I am the poor organist."

"Madame, you have been kind, very kind. You are very kind. I am the poor organist, I am the poor organist."

"The Khan" wrote a poem praying for rain, which was published in the Toronto Globe on Wednesday. The next day it rained.

The Picton Gazette came out last week with a fine illustrated supplement in honor of the opening of the True Blue orphanage. The half-tone illustrations were good, and the tout ensemble a credit to the publishers.

Prospectors are busy in North Hastings locating iron and gold mines. Many excellent samples of iron ores have been sent to Deseronto for analysis. Hastings is without doubt exceedingly rich in mineral resources.

The Toronto School Board is of the opinion that the curriculum of the public schools in that city is too complicated. They have therefore decided to drop algebra and geometry. It would be better if school boards generally trimmed off the superfluous branches from the tree of learning and gave the pupils a good grounding in the elementary branches, leaving the sciences and other ornate studies until the children had reached more maturity.

Labor Day was not as generally observed in Deseronto as it should have been. It would have been fitting for the stores and shops to shut down for the day except in cases where necessity demand that they be kept open. People who have purchases to make could surely defer their shopping till the next day. It is the one day in the year set apart for the relaxation and enjoyment of the workman, and all should do honor to him once a year at least.

The prompt attendance of pupils at the opening of schools allows the teachers to form their classes promptly. The constant attendance of pupils enables the classes to be kept together and all advance in nearly the same ratio. When parents become lax in the duty of sending children to school regularly both the delinquent pupil and the class suffer in consequence. Children are a little anxious to learn all they can and a little encouragement will sometimes work wonders in inclining the youthful mind towards Parusias' lofty height.

The abnormal demand for structural iron and steel has had the effect of creating almost a famine in this branch of industry and contractors are asking for more time in consequence. The high prices asked for iron has had the effect of increasing the demand for lumber for building purposes and the prices for this are rapidly advancing. There is a large increase in the amount of building this season compared with last year, and prosperity is everywhere apparent. Fewer men are out of employment now than has been the case in years. Perhaps the "growing time" for Canada has come to stay.

The Tribune would suggest that the post box at the corner of St. George and Edmon Streets be moved from its present location to a position in front of the post office and used as a box for the collection of mail posted after the office is closed. As it is now people in that portion of the town have either to get their letters in the post office before 7 p.m., or walk a distance to one of the night boxes in order to get letters off on the night trains. It might also be a good idea to make arrangements so that the lobby of the post office would be open to box holders during holidays and a little later at night.

Deseronto Market Prices.

The supply of vegetables keeps up to the demand, which is always larger than the supply. The following table, Prices remain about stationary, there being but few changes to record.

Police Court.

Peter Culbertson, an Indian, was charged with the offence of being intoxicated on the public streets. On Tuesday he was charged with the offence before the Police Magistrate, who imposed a fine of $10 and 30 days in gaol. G. E. Deroche appealed to the court.

On Sunday last James Dawe, a recent arrival in this town, was found drunk in the Central Park and was charged with being drunk and disorderly. He was brought up before the magistrate and was placed with expedition in the cooler. He was very disorderly and tried all he knew to resist arrest. On Tuesday he pleaded guilty and was ordered to pay $22 toward his fines and the taxes on his days hard labour. His Worship observed that if he had not used bad language, and had gone quietly when arrested, he would have let him go. Blackader, the magistrate, said he would be lenient on the public streets of this town. G. E. Deroche was present on behalf of the town.

High School Opening.

Deseronto High School opened this week with an attendance of 600, considerably fewer of young people than the neighboring towns were registered, and everything promised a year's work even more successful than that which has just passed.

A considerable number of faces that had grown familiar to the teacher during the year had disappeared from the list of students. The number of who were successful in obtaining certificates, the staff seemed to sustain the loss with a certain amount of satisfaction. The third and fourth forms are better filled than usual.

The school has had a fine record and the new hook and ladder truck and horse wagon arrived last Saturday from Toronto. The truck carries ten ladders, from a 55 foot extension ladder down to a ladder 12 feet long; 2 complement of hooks, axes, etc. The apparatus is painted in the regulation bright red, and presents quite a metropolitan appearance. On Saturday evening an alarm was sounded and the hose wagon was pressed into use for the first time. There was no fire.

Uncle Tom's Cabin.

Next Tuesday evening George Burtch's original "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company will hold the boards at Naylor's Opera House. This standard play is too well known to need comment. For many reasons Mr. Burtch has done away with the "Cabin" road, and an unsuccessful season is yet to be recorded by him. In fact this company plays to crowded houses in every town. The play is well staged and the accessories are first-class. Mr.

Burtch has done away with the bloodless scenes, which were not well received by the audience.

Naylor's Opera House on Tuesday will stand a good chance of being crowded by those who wish to witness a good rendering of Harriet Beecher's Stowe's greatest work.

Customs Returns for August.

The following are the results of the Deseronto, Cobourg and Port Hope districts during August, extracted from the corresponding month last year by $758; the imports of free goods in the same month were $4,702 more this year than last; the imports of dutiable goods were $1,382 less this year than last, while the government exacted $283.16 less in duties than they did in 1898. The following are the figures:

St. Andrew's Thanksgiving.

Harvest thanksgiving services was held at St. Andrew's church, Tyendinaga reserve, last Sunday morning. A very large congregation was present and the service was conducted with great interest. The church had been most becomingly decorated with flowers, fruit, grain, vegetables, etc. and presented a most attractive appearance. Rev. W. A. McIlroy, B. A., the missionary in charge, conducted the service which was a very hearty one. Addresses were given by the missionary, Mayor Rath, and S. Russell, M. P. P. The choir, Miss Nellie Gammon presiding at the organ, led the singing in a most effective manner. The offertory was liberal. Anniversary service will be held on the 24th.

An Antimony Mine.

E. E. Wallace, of Montreal, has returned from Hants County, N. S., with some fine specimens of antimony found in that constituency. Several of these have been analysed and found to be excellent. It is to be found in the same country, which is also situated in the same county. The price of this metal has increased lately, due no doubt to the advance in other metals. Mr. Wallace intends sailing for England in a few days and putting some of these samples are pure ore and weigh a hundred pounds each.

It is thought that this is one of the largest deposits yet discovered in the world. Mr. Wallace owns the property on which the mine is located.

McKee—Gerow.

Last Wednesday evening, in Belleville, Rev. Charles E. McIntyre, tie knot, that united Miss Ethel Grier and Mr. George Gerow, was a daughter of the late James R. Grier, of Ameliusburg, while the groom is employed at the general offices of the Rathburn Company in Deseronto. After the ceremony the happy couple went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Grier in Ameliusburg. Many friends wish the young couple all happiness.

John Dalton.

John Dalton, said Mr. Doughty, has come to Deseronto, but that Smith's Falls would be the gaining. The speaker said that Smith's Falls is a fine town, and that the lakes in the country surrounding it were picturesque. The cedar trees are great, and the waterways to be travelled that his departing friend would be able to Herz-Verlangen.

Slowly the red sky fades to dusky gray.

Clouds are the last to go, and the land,

Heard is the tin and bustle of the day;

Cools is the air by evening breezes faint,

Sadly the sea breaks off the angry reef,

Filling with mournful music all the air,

Sobbing and wailing in its anguished grief,

Roaring itself in importunate despair.

Ever, through varying moods, the same sad

strain,

Echoes above the roaring of the deep,

With a wild and mournful, agonizing pain,

When the sun sets, it sinks into sleep.

Again I listen to its weary moan.

The sad plaint of a wild, impassioned heart,

A vague and restless longing fills my own,

And, uninvited, hunting tear-drops strong,

Oh, the soul-longing for the kindred soul,

That throbs and sleeps and wakes to throb,

That aches at reason, baffles all control,

And fills my heart with heaviness and pain.

Oh, for the thrilling music of his voice!

Oh, for the tender shelter of his arms!

Where no vague fear of future was, now,

Where I am safe from life's dread alarms,

On the Indian Department.

But I am all alone, love—all alone!

The night-shriek shrieks discordant in its

The waters heave and toss and sob and moan,

Oppressed by the dreariness of the night.

Gloom and woe all was once so fair,

There comes no message, by the night wind.

To my sad heart—no echo stirs the air,

The darkness thickens fast—goodbye,

The Horticultural Society.

A meeting of the directors of the Deseronto Horticultural Society was held on Wednesday evening in the hall of the Agricultural Society.

Final arrangements were made by the

the annual flower show, committee members were appointed. The date selected for this year's show is September 20. It will be held in Union Hall, from 6 to 9 p.m.

The flower show committee had a meeting at 7 o'clock.

The prize list is in the hands of the printers and will be issued to members next week. To ensure success, all members are requested to make an effort to contribute a few plants at least, the same as in former years.

The fall distribution of bulbs will evidently soon put a check on the extensive supply of pedagogues.—

A Guaranteed Asthma Cure.

Clarke's Kola Compound Cures.

Some years ago this would have been considered an impossibility, but Dr. Clarke has solved the problem and, continuing his experiments with the wonderful Kola plant in Canada. In December, 1888, he found that by combining extracts from the Kola with other extracts known in California that the compound would cure the cases of the leading London hospitals he found that 90 to 95 per cent. of the patients were cured in 60 days' treatment. Since the introduction of the Kola Compound there have been over 10,000 cases cured in Canada alone. Mr. J. H. J. C. P. R. and the Canadian Physicians have given a great success to Kola in its worst forms, in getting anything to help me permanently," said Alice, who was weeping quietly on her shoulder.

"Let me go home. My poor father, how he must have suffered!" said Alice, rising.

"Ahh! that I dared ask him to forgive me!" said the card, in a tone of remorseful sorrow.

"He will, my lord," said Alice, gently; "you do not know how kind, now get him in his heart! He will forgive you with joy."

"Wretch that I am!" groaned the card. "Every one, no matter how willing to forgive injuries, is bound to forgive me. Oh, that were worth it!"

"You are dear uncle," said Kate. "You repeat for what has passed, and shall we not follow the example of the Saviour of mankind, who has said: 'I forgive you sin inasmuch as you know not so much of yourself. Believe me, my dear host, there are many long days of happiness in store for you yet.'"

He shook his head sadly, but said nothing. Alice bent over him, for a short time, accompanied by Lord Arndale, who sat for the Pines. The joy of Sir Hugh at meeting his daughter was only equalled by his surprise, at hearing all the strange events that had transpired, and the sorrow and remorse of his former life.

"I forgive him—I forgive him with all my heart," he exclaimed warmly. "The joy I feel at again beholding Alice amply consoles me for all I have suffered and his great griefs have effaced the remembrance of the past. Let me go to him; it's long since I stood in the old family home of Dirlitole, and in the presence of the dead all shall be forgotten and forgiven."

It was a sad meeting of those two old men, but joy mingled with their sadness. The ready forgiveness of all the earth's thoughts to hope for pardon from a high-spirited girl, who was happy in the presence of his daughter.

And side by side, in the family vault, those two were laid to sleep the sleep which knows no waking. A plain, black marble slab, bearing only the simple inscription "Sir Hugh" marked the lonely, quiet rooms were filled with officers—some in splendid uniforms—and among them Charley soon failed to recognize his friend.

He had just led his third partner to a seat, and was in the midst of an animated conversation, when Sir Harry passed him, whispering.

"They're come, Charley. Look sharp now!"

Charley gave him a savage scowl at this interruption, and resumed his animated flirtation with the lady. Miss McNamee, for the first time, had been annoyed by the intrusion of her husband.

"Just as I was from horseriding school—of novels and moonlight, and terribly romantic. Captivated by the constant attentions of the wild but handsome young student, she had surrendered her virgin heart into his keeping at first sight.

"Upon my soul you're an angel to me! I never had such a happy night in my life."

"Ah! how beside yourself Mr. Sidney?"

"It's truth, I'm telling you! I adore you, Marry Anne!"

"My name is Susan, if you please, sir!"

"So I am on my honor, Susan. I never saw an one who suited my fancy before in my life!"

"Ah! now you're only making fun of me, Mr. Sidney! There! don't be squeezing my hand that way! There's Sir Harry Dudley looking!"

"Outwardly him! I say, Susan, I'm not the pleasure of calling to see you!"

"To be sure! I'll be so glad to see you! Ah! Mr. Sidney, the pleasure I experience in the society of such a refined young man as you can't be described!"

Here the fair Susan sighed, and looked toward him.

"I say, I say, I say, Charley, I'm a tragicone, I disbursed from the charms of female society in the walls of old Trinity, how much more delight will I find in the interview. It will be so delightful a relaxation, after the profound study in which pass my days. That's a woppy anyhow," he muttered to himself.

"Well, then, come to-morrow evening, and I'll take Susan, with another tondance."

"With all my heart, Ah! Susan—how slowly the hours will drag on till then; with my eyes shall again be blest by the sight of your lovely face!"

"Entirely, Mr. Sidney! But, don't what will the people say? That's some body coming now; don't be putting your arm around my waist."

Charley could gain a more becoming attitude, a lady passed, leaning on his shoulder, to a most elaborate toilet, in which he looked like a killingly good specimen. He took a smoking cigar, and leisurely watching the billows of smoke as it curled gracefully above his head, was our sometime friend, Sir Harry Dudley. The sid-de-camp was in full evening costume, likewise, for, not to keep you any longer in suspense, dear mother, I am going to go to bed."

"I say, Charley, said Dudley, continuing a conversation which our abrupt entrance has interrupted, "she is, of all divine, fascinating, charming girls, the most bewitching. Such eyes, such lips—such ringlets, and such a foot and ankle! to gods! See you, Sidney? What did she come with?"

"Lady Mary—somebody; I forget who. If I remember right, I saw her at Dirlitole the night of the ball, long ago—the night I first met your little Yankee."

"Ah, yes, Lady Stafford. By the way, Harry, I would give a trifle to see little Maggie now."

"So would I, said Harry, with a wide-awink of his dark eye. "Come, don't be so hard on me; I have a right to look on the girls. No female heart could withstand you exquisite eyes. Come, Charley, don't make yourself too fast."

"I'll wait your service," said Charley, drawing on his gloves and taking his hat; "and now for your unknown lady-love."

"Yew; and I'll bet you a dozen of change that when you see her you'll be in love with her!" said Dudley, as the two young men walked arm-in-arm, down the street.

"Hardly, I think," said Charley, as his thoughts reverted to Dirlitole and Cousin Maggie. "I'm love-proof. By the way, how I wish Fitzgerald was here to help me to spicier reliefs, and the like; however, reserves the right to test as to flesh and gravity, and if any person is found to be offering petroleum for sale which is not up to the standard, the goods will be seized. "Yew; and I'll bet you a dozen of change that when you see her you'll be in love with her!" said Dudley, as the two young men walked arm-in-arm, down the street.

"Hardly, I think," said Charley, as his thoughts reverted to Dirlitole and Cousin Maggie. "I'm love-proof. By the way, how I wish Fitzgerald was here to help me to spicier reliefs, and the like; however, reserves the right to test as to flesh and gravity, and if any person is found to be offering petroleum for sale which is not up to the standard, the goods will be seized. All packages containing naphtha must be painted entirely in red."

"Ah, yes, Lady Stafford. By the way, Harry, I would give a trifle to see little Maggie now."

"So would I, said Harry, with a wide-awink of his dark eye. "Come, don't be so hard on me; I have a right to look on the girls. No female heart could withstand you exquisite eyes. Come, Charley, don't make yourself too fast."

"I'll wait your service," said Charley, drawing on his gloves and taking his hat; "and now for your unknown lady-love."

"Yew; and I'll bet you a dozen of change that when you see straw for him—no, indeed, I didn't like him a bit better than the night I met him here first."

"But he went to see you every day," interposed Charley.

"I told him he didn't come to see me!" said Maggie, "I told him to see Bess; he fell in love with her and she was with him at first sight. It was awful sudden—just like the smallpox."

Charley laughed at the odd comparison.

"The night of the ball I ascended being quite sociable with you, but when I saw how you devoured me, I told you I didn't eat you, but I told Bess and Sir Harry I'd pay off for it. So I got Bess to tell you that she had seen how you would take to her. You see I thought you didn't care anything for me or you would not have paid so much attention to that other, but I wanted to be sure. Well, she told you, and when you left her in the ballroom I came home and told us; and when I told her how I had been, she agreed, I felt half sorry. Just then Sir Harry saw you coming, and, wishing to carry on the deception Bess had begun, he lifted my hand to his lips. I couldn't help smiling when you saw me, you looked so sweet like an insulted prince than an every-day Christian. Then the next day I sent a note to Bess, telling her to your rooms, explaining all and begging your forgiveness, but he came back with it and told me you were gone. I am not going to tell you, I felt then, because it would make you very unhappy. I didn't feel a bit comfortable, and I felt mad at you, for going off in such a hurry without giving a body time to explain. I didn't very well know what to do for a while, until Kate wrote to me, saying you were morose around Dinsdale like an old man, and I told her to come on, and begged her to come right away. So I only waited long enough to be bridegroom for Bess, and then I came straight back. And now I hope you're satisfied, and I must request of you to go right down on your knees and beg my pardon for the great speech about my changing to Sir Harry Dudley's flock. It was real mean of you to do that!"

Now Charley made up friends with her we are not prepared to say. All we know is, that he did make up friends with her; and soon after, much to the surprise of everybody except Kate, concluded he wouldn't go back to Dublin any more, but would instead go to America for his education, and take unto himself a wife, on the same day which made Lord Arndale the husband of Alice Arndale.

There was another surprise awaiting the happy household, when Fitzgerald one morning stood before the earl, and, in a frank, manly speech, requested the hand of Kate. The earl was astonished, but said he had no objection to the match, that young lady herself was satisfied.

Kate's answer must have been satisfactory, though she only blushed, and said something in a very low tone of voice; whereupon Fitzgerald and Kate very dutifully knelt at his feet, and the earl blessed them in a rather mannerly.

There were three weddings on the day at Dinsdale shortly after that, and another before, nor since, were such doings heard of as at the old mansion. Nothing was talked of, for miles around, but the great goings on at Dinsdale. All the country were assembled on the lawns in front of the mansion, where they feasted and danced, and the whole affair was a success.

Sir Harry and Lady Dudley came to Dinsdale to honor the nuptials with their presence. And a very pretty sight it was to see those four brides—all looking so pretty, so happy and so interesting.

Immediately after the wedding, all started for a tour on the Continent, and when they returned, they were welcomed by John and his faithful Jamie, now man and wife—for whom Lord Arndale never ceased making inquiry, until they were found out. The joy of the good Jamie at seeing his beloved young lady well and happy, and the wife of Lord Arndale, knew no bounds; and she nearly went wild with delight at learning of the good news of the nuptials.

Shortly after their return, the earl passed peacefully away; and Lord Arndale—now Earl of Dinsdale—together with his countess, took up their residence in the dear old family mansion of Dinsdale. Sir Hugh, who came to reside with his daughter, gave up the Pines to Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald, and both Kate and Alice were delighted at being settled in one another, one.

Sir Harry and Lady Dudley went to reside in his family mansion, taking with them Bess's mother—the old steward having gone the way of all flesh some months before.

John and Jamie were comfortably provided for by their numerous wealthy relatives and friends, and passed the remainder of their lives as happily as the former part had been troubled and stormy.

And Mr. and Mrs. Charley Sidney—how shall we take leave of them? Charley and Maggie settled down astonishingly after marriage, and spent most of their time in the old city. Charley was very much attached.

Marie Nelson passed the remainder of her days at Dinsdale, or Dirty Hole as her saile attendant persisted in calling it, in spite of all corrections. Here, studying out several new forms of disease to which she believed herself a martyr, the worthy lady passed her time very pleasantly.

Miss Dickett still remained presiding goddess of the mysteries of housekeeping, under the new earl and countess.

When quizzed by Fitzgerald—who solemnly asserted he had no peace with Kate, she was so jealous of the days he had formerly spent trying to win Miss Dickett's heart—the offended housekeeper would pull her arms with dignity and restraint.

"It is all very fine—so it is!"

Old Moll resided with Kate, to whom she was extremely attached; and every few months, while she lived, she still paid a visit to the old Moor Manor, as a sort of homage to the memory of her beloved master.

And when the merry Christmas times came, the great parlors of Dinsdale were filled with such a crowd—little Duddies, Bessies, and Harrys, little Sidneys, Charleys, and Maggies. Little Fitzgerald, Marjorie, and Alice of the earl and countess. A happy household they formed, as they assembled every year; and none among them ever grew up more beautiful or more beloved than the little dark-eyed, gentle orphan, Magdalene.

HAPPYMEN AND WOMEN.

Paine's Celery Compound
Has Given Them New
Health and Long
Years of Life.

THOUSANDS MADE WELL DURING THE SUMMER MONTHS.

How to be Strong and Happy
in the Autumn Season.

Happy indeed are the men and women who, during the summer months, have taken advantage of the disease-banishing and life-giving virtues of Paine's Celery Compound. Dangerous ailments and wasting diseases have been banished, and they enter the autumn months full of life and vigor, with long and happy years before them.

If you are unfortunately born with those who are tired, worn out, listless, languid, or who have a nervous, or your life made miserable by kidney disease, liver trouble or blood diseases, and have not had sad failures in the past under medical treatment and the use of wrong medicines, we would invite you to try the effects of trying Paine's Celery Compound, a medicine that cannot fail or disappoint you. It is the only remedy in the world that has the full and hearty approval of educated men and women, a remedy that has received the best physicans' indorsement of the best physicians.

SENATOR ELKINS' GREAT SCHEME.

During the presidential campaign of 1892 Senator Quay and Senator Elkins, who were managing the Republican interests, and ex-Senator Brice and Henry Watterson, who were in charge of the Democratic headquarters, used to meet at the same hotel and frequently dined together. One evening, as they were sitting at the same table, Mr. Brice looked over to Senator Quay and asked:

"How are you folks off for money?"

"We are very hard up," replied the Republican chairman. "How are you getting along?"

"Well, said Brice, "whenever we want money, I go down into my own pocket for it. I have not been able to get much anywhere else."

"You are lucky to have a pocket to go into," said Senator Quay. "If I had money of my own, I would not grumble."

"But," said Brice, "I have to borrow now."

"Gentlemen," said Senator Elkins, "I have a suggestion to make. Suppose we go four down town tomorrow and borrow $1,000,000 upon our joint indorsement and divide it between the two parties and then let whichever one wins pay the notes?"—Chicago Record.

GLADSTONE'S PECCULAR EYES.

There is an anecdote in Gladstone's of Gladstone and Professor Blairstead which confirms the story of the statesman's enigmatic eyes. At a dinner the two men were opposite, and when Gladstone gave in a forcible way his idea that Homer was no longer recited but chanted, the professor cried out, "Mr. Gladstone, I don't believe a word of it!" Then he rose to argue the matter and said one sentence, but got no further. He had met Gladstone's gaze and seen his outer eyelids widened to their fullness in a steady glare, and his tongue stumbled and he sank back into his chair in confusion. The writer concludes:

"Go to the zoo for it. Take your umbrella. Make your way to the place where the eagles, vultures, falcons and such-like birds are perched on their perches. Select a bird. Stand at him with intent, and you will see the outer eyelids expand as Mr. Gladstone did. Poke at him with your umbrella. The filmy vertical lids through which he looks at the sun and opens to paralyze his prey will part, and then you will see what Gladstone saw and understand his feelings."

AN ENTERPRISING FIRM.

At an examination in a certain school for girls an essay on "Boys" was ordered written, and this was one of the compositions:

"The boy is not an animal, yet he can be heard to a considerable distance. When a boy hollers he opens his mouth like a frog's, but girls hold their tongue till they are spoke to, and they answer respectfully, and tell just how it was. A boy thinks he is clever because he can make it deep, but God made the dry land for everything else. The boy rested on the sandbank, and shortly after was heard to go through this colloquy with some unseen. Pointing his pistol at a squirrel he examined it dignified and dramatic style."

"Halt! I am constable of this district and command you to halt. You won't, eh? Well, here goes!"—bang! "I hate to do it, but it is in the discharge of my official duty. Now, I told you to stop, but you wouldn't!" Just then the old pepper box became uncontrollable and bang, bang, bang went the remaining four loads. The firing soon attracted a crowd and the tree was thus saved.

But, notwithstanding the episode of the sycamore and the stars it still shows, the gentleman is said to have made a good officer.—Hazlegreen (Ky) Herald.

AN EYE TO BUSINESS.

A little boy named Peter at a public school saw his teacher faint and fall. In the general confusion it was impossible to get him to his feet, and the little ones flocked round that prostrate woman and her sympathizing colleagues. But this small boy kept both his color and his coolness. Standing on a bench and raising his hand, he exclaimed: "Please, teacher, can I run home and tell father to come? He makes coffins!"

OUTLOOK IS MORE PEACEFUL

Britain's Latest Note Considered to Be an Ultimatum.

Though the Door Is Not Yet Shut the British Dispatch Says the Present State of Tension Must Come to an End Speedily—The Situation Is Most Acute—It Is Believed That Kruger Will Confer.

Preteria, Sept. 13.—The British Cabinet's despatch of Friday was handed to the Transvaal Government at 11:30 a.m. yesterday.

The reading in the Volksraad yesterday of the reply of the British Secretary of State for the Colonies to the latest Transvaal note was greeted with silence. There is no indication as yet of the views held regarding the official circle.

A Virtual Ultimatum.

London, Sept. 13.—A special despatch from Pretoria says the British note, which was read in both Raads yesterday, is regarded there as a virtual ultimatum. The correspondent says: "It proposes a five days' time limit for the presentation of the gold fields in the Volksraad, equality for the British and Dutch in the Volksraad, and equality for the old and new burghers in regard to Presidential and other elections. If these conditions are met, a conference between representatives of the two Governments will follow for the purpose of drafting the necessary measures, and of avoiding the introduction of unnecessary conditions by the Transvaal Government or the possibility of the passage of any new bills calculated to defeat the reforms. In view of the fact that the government says that the present state of affairs in South Africa cannot be prolonged, the definite acceptance of this proposal is demanded without delay, otherwise Her Majesty's Government will immediately take the whole situation under reconsideration, and will not so far bring about a settlement. The situation is acute."

An Inadequate Summary.

Owing to the understanding that Mr. Chamberlain's note is to be published simultaneously in London and Pretoria, only an inadequate summary has yet been telegraphed. The London papers are not yet in a position to comment until the text is available. The Times, which considers the summary obviously imperfect, says: "It is incredible that all mention of suzerainty and the other matters in controversy have been passed over or ignored."

Must First Get Out.

Johannesburg, Sept. 13.—The Ultlanders of Bloemfontein have applied to the burghers for permission to remain neutral in the event of war, but were refused, on the ground that, as Britons remaining in the Transvaal and refusing to fight, they must be regarded as enemies.

Panic Was Caused.

A panic was caused in Johannesburg by the circulation of the report that negotiations between the Transvaal and Great Britain had ceased. Three hundred Cymrians, with their families, including children too young to travel and women too weak and ill to walk, boarded one train for the south.

Accommodation Predicted.

Cape Town, Sept. 13.—Various unofficial reports have been received from Pretoria predicting the Transvaal's acceptance of the terms of the latest despatch, which was read in the Volksraad yesterday afternoon, and is understood to furnish a basis for negotiations which will possibly lead to a peaceful settlement.

Bloemfontein, Orange Free State, Sept. 13.—The Daily Friend says it has excellent authority for predicting that the Government of the South African Republic will accept the suggested conference at Cape Town.

Indian Troops Ready.

Simsa, British India, Sept. 13.—The first transport for South Africa sails with the field hospitals from Bombay Sept. 16, and the entire force from India will be embarked Sept. 25. General Hunter, the chief of staff, leaves Simsia to day for South Africa.

Ammunition for Kruger.

Lorenzo Marquez, Delagoa Bay, Sept. 13.—A consignment of 571 cases of ammunition, presumably bound for the Transvaal, has been landed here.

Irishmen to Fight Britain.

Prato, Italy, Sept. 13.—A thousand Irishmen, including 200 from Pretoria and Johannesburg, have organised as a regiment, and have offered their services in defense of the Transvaal in the event of war with Great Britain.

CANADIANS IN JOHANNESBURG

Return Thanks for the Moral Support of the Canadian Government.

Ottawa, Sept. 13.—The following has been sent to Premier Laurier from Johannesburg:

AUSTRALIAN CONFEDERATION

Addresses to the Queen for Power Will Be Sufficient.

Three Colonies Voted for It, and It Is Presumed the Imperial Parliament Will Take the Matter Up Next Session—Guseland, Western Australia and Tasmania Have Not Yet Settled the Question—Confederation New Assured.

London, Sept. 13.—The confederation scheme of the Australian colonies, which has been attracting so much attention, provides that addresses to the Queen from those colonies asking for the formation of a confederation will be sufficient to call a conference. As those colonies—New South Wales, South Australia and Victoria—have voted addresses upon the subject, the Imperial Parliament, upon the resumption of its sessions will, it is presumed, take the matter up, whether or not the Queen has been asked to do so. The movement is favorable to joining in the movement. Queensland, Western Australia and Tasmania have not yet settled the question. Queensland's final vote is not yet known, and Tasmania has not yet voted. Tasmania's vote carried the federation, but its Parliament has not yet voted an address. Western Australia has not yet voted.

New Zealand has nothing to do with the confederation, quite aside. Queensland, Tasmania and Western Australia eventually declare for it they will be taken in. It is presumed that they will favor it. Their decisions will probably be known before the reassembling of the Imperial Parliament, but, as already pointed out, the confederation is already assured by the action of the three other colonies.

PARDON DREYFUS.

Temps Advises the Government, So That France Could Attend to Affairs of Country and Exposition.

Paris, Sept. 13.—Under the lead of "Pacification" the Temps last evening urges the Government to take advantage of the present conditions and pardon Dreyfus, which it adds, "would put the finishing touch to the Rennes verdict, and would permit France to occupy herself with the affairs of the country and the exhibition."

Paris, Sept. 13.—Pays Up Well.

Bonnes, Sept. 13.—M. de M. Dreyfus has returned here and visited his brother yesterday morning in the prison. He found him still bearing up well. The prisoner has received an enormous number of letters of sympathy since Saturday, and he passes the greater part of the day in reading them.

Boycott Movement Growing.

London, Sept. 13.—The movement to boycott the Paris Exposition continues to grow. Numerous meetings are arranged yesterday afternoon, their intention to suspend preparation of their exhibits until "Dreyfus blot is wiped out."

No Official Movement.

Telegrams from the principal capitals report growing agitations in favor of a boycott of the Paris Exposition, but there is no indication of any official movement.

ORLEANS OSTRACIZED.

Neither England, Italy nor Belgium Wants Him—It Was Anti-Dreyfus.

Paris, Sept. 13.—The Journal says the Duke of Orleans has been ostracized in this part he has taken in the Dreyfus affair, adding that the English royal family decided to attend the marriage of the son of the Duke of Chartres, that the King of Italy has requested the Duke of Orleans not to stay in Belgium, and that King Ferdinand, father of the King of Italy and husband of Princess Helena of Orleans, sister of the Duke of Orleans, to receive the Duke of Orleans if he comes to Italy.

Verdict Received Quietly.

Paris, Sept. 13.—At yesterday's Cabinet Council the Premier, M. Waldeck-Rousseau, informed his colleagues he had received a report from the ministry of various departments which showed that the verdict of the Rennes court-martial had been everywhere received quietly.

Two Anti-Semites Arrested.

Paris, Sept. 13.—Three men who have been engaged in supplying food to the metal which Uncle Sam uses for his coins, amounting in value to over $200,000 a year, is on the signs of this city. One brewery alone spends $50,000 annually for gold and silver leaf. Next to the brewers the cigar manufacturers go in most extensively for gold and silver signs, while a good authority has estimated that the tobacco houses and above the doors of New York's drug stores there is enough gold to mint any number of theives. —Exchange.

Gold and Silver Signs.

Nearly $100,000 worth of gold and over $200,000 worth of silver are left out of doors, unguarded, every night the year round in Greater New York.

No one ever thinks of stealing it, and indeed, until some inventive thief comes along the owners need have no fear, as the metal is securely glued down and generally from ten to feet above the sidewalk.

It is on the signs of the city. Gold and silver leaf, far purer than the metal which Uncle Sam uses for his coins, amounting in value to over $200,000 a year, is on the signs of this city. One brewery alone spends $50,000 annually for gold and silver leaf.

King Alexander Warned.

Vienna, Sept. 13.—The Austro-Hungarian and Russo-German governments have sent telegrams to King Alexander, warning him not to precipitate a revolution by attempting to dethrone any of the Radical leaders in connection with the recent conspiracy to assassinate King Milan.

Ex-King Milan demands trial of the conspirators and the death penalty on all the accused.

The city is quiet, no one daring to make any disturbance. Additional troops are arriving from the provinces daily.

Carlist Plots in Spain.

Barcelona, Sept. 13.—The discontent over the new taxes continues. Carlist plots have been discovered in the neighboring villages, and the surrounding guards have been invested by the civil guards.

Good Naturalist in India.

Simsa, British India, Sept. 13.—There has been a good rainfall over the Madras and Bombay Deccan. The situation elsewhere is unchanged.

It Shrank.

There is a learned man in Michigan who would rather have a rare specimen from the animal, vegetable or mineral kingdom than a high political office. Working for him is a sympathetic son of Erin who professes as much interest as though he knew all about these things. A bit of shrewdness that gets him into favors. The other day he was about to visit his employer with a letter stating that it was from his brother Mike, a coal miner in Ohio, telling how they had dug out a serpent turned to stone 50 feet long and as thick as a barrel.

The savant never stopped to read. He took the first train and reached the little mining town by the shortest route. The next evening he was back and only grunted when his eager employer greeted him.

"Did you find the snake?" ventured his man.

"Yes. The snake in the case is that brother of yours. He's the greatest liar unhung. His serpent 50 feet long and as thick as a barrel was the petrified root of a tree 13 inches in length and half an inch in diameter."

"There's no loirs at our name, son. It must be the shrunken serpent, after they put it in the sun."—Detroit Free Press.

Lincoln's History of Himself.

"In the papers of the late Charles Lannan," says the Washington correspondent of the Chicago Record, "there is an autobiography of Mr. Lincoln written in his own hand. Mr. Lannan was editor of The Congressional Directory at the time Mr. Lincoln was elected to congress, and, according to the regular custom, forwarded to him as well as to all other members elect a blank to be filled out with facts and dates which might be made the basis of a biography in the Directory. Mr. Lincoln's blank was returned promptly, filled up in his own handwriting with the following information:

"Born Feb. 12, 1809, in Hardin county, Ky.

"Education defective.

"Profession, lawyer.

"Military service, captain of volunteers in the Black Hawk war.

"Offices held: Postmaster at a very small office, four times a member of the Illinois legislature and elected to the lower house of the next congress."

The Power of the Whale.

If the whale knew its own power, it could easily destroy all the machinery which the art of man could invent for catching him. It would only be necessary for him to stand on the surface in a straight line in order to break the thickest rope; but instead, on being struck by the harpoon, he obeys a natural instinct, which, in this instance, betrays him to his death.

Not having an air bladde, he can sink to the lowest depths of the ocean, and, mistaking the harpoon for the teeth of a swordfish, or a shark, he instantly descends, this being his manner of freeing himself from these enemies, who cannot bear the pressure of deep ocean, and from descending and ascending in small space he thus puts himself in the power of the whale.

Whales include the pressure of the atmosphere, a body at the depth of 100 feet would sustain that of 60 pounds on the square inch, while one at 4,000 feet, a depth by no means considerable, would be exposed to a pressure of 1,830 pounds. We need not, therefore, feel surprised that on the foundering of a ship at sea, though its timbers part, not a spar floats to the surface, for if the hull has sunk to a great depth all that is porous is penetrated with water or is greatly compressed.—Omaha World-Herald.

THE CHOOSING.

Laurel will be "mildly" in her silks and satin lace. And the great and wait to wonder, and their dreams of love resign, Those other gold and jewels, all that vainer would cross their eyes. Laurel'll be no rich man's darling; Laurel'll be the poor man's slave!

"Out, you dreamer!" quoth the mother, old in years, but sorrow tried; "Will you walk the child's way, weeping, when the child is bid a home? Will you hide you in a hovel—go a beggar to the grave?"

Out upon the poor man's woe! Who would be the poor man's slave?

"Heed you, mother! The words of wisdom: Let but poverty appear.

In the door and love, affrighted, flit out the window, dear! Who would spell roses for roses, so to cry when none can save?

Bitter bread the poor man brings you. Out upon the poor man's slave!"

Does she lament? Tear drops glisten, but she needs no golden gleam, In the green heart of the meadows weight her drowsy head, and weary eyes.

Tramps all their gold and jewels, all that vainer women crave!

Arms around the weeping mother—Let me be the poor man's slave!"

THE PROFESSOR

A Love Affair of October and May.

There was a hint of autumn in the woodland tints, where the colors shaded from softest gray green through russet tones to deepest red and brown, and the breeze that swept over the uplands was suggestive of chilly October, but the golden spell of Indian summer lay on the valley, touching the ripe peach with an added bloom and winking the late roses to unfold their fragrant hearts before it was too late to give their sweetness to the dying summer.

In the rectory orchard, under the shade of the fruit laden trees, village lads and lasses had bold and sought, and out in the meadow the children laughed and played and danced to the music of their own voices.

The professor stood at the outer edge of a circle of infant revelers, his spectacles pushed up on his broad forehead, his soft Homburg hat tilted forward to shield his eyes from the sun.

Gray eyes they were, with a keenness in them that was reflective and that lent them a clearer vision for things that had set at a distance than for present realities.

The iron gray hair was brushed back and outlined features that were not unattractive, though their sternness gave him a semblance of severity until he smiled.

When the professor smiled children understood that the tall figure with its inclination to stoop was not likely to prove aggressive, and that the learning contained in that massive frame could be put aside with the spectacles; also that the professor might have been a young once, before the weight of a laura wreath had puckered his brows and powdered his hair with the frost that comes before winter.

He was smiling now and looking with appreciative interest at the game in progress.

"Do you hear what they are singing?" he asked the rector's wife.

Mrs. Errington detached herself from the tea urn to answer carelessly, "Nuts and May, isn't it?"

"The delightful irrelevance of childhood," pursued the professor, "the sublimity in the impossible. 'Here we come gathering nuts and May—so early in the morning.' Not content with demanding their autumn and their spring at the same time, they must have had the boldness to call all the world at their feet, with youth to make them enjoy it. They have faith enough to remove mountains, but I am afraid the days of miracles are past."

Mrs. Errington's glance lingered on him for a moment, and then he traveled to where a girl in a white dress stood under the trees that bordered the rectory garden.

"There is Evadine," she said; "how frost and cold and sweet she looks. Don't you like the professor?"

He took off his spectacles to give a consequential answer.

"Miss Evadine is always pleasant to look at," he said, as he gazed with a penetrating air in her direction; "at this distance I do not see her so plainly as I could wish."

"And she is always pleasant to talk to," added Mrs. Errington; "go and ask her if she would like some tea, professor."

He went obediently, and the white figure moved to meet him, while the echo of the words "cool and fresh and sweet" floated still in his ears.

"I am sent to ask you if you will have some tea," he said.

"It is time now for an excuse or an apology," said Evadine sternly.

"Does my errand need further?" he questioned in return, with his usual gravity.

"You seemed to consider so," said she, "in which, if you will not think me conceited, I will confess you are unusual. There are people," she continued, casting his puzzled air, "who would talk to me without any effort at all—merely for the pleasure of the thing."

A little smile was playing round her mouth, and through her curved eyelashes the sparkle of her eyes meant mischief.

The professor pushed his spectacles up again; when people were close to him he could see better without assistance.

"There are people," he said, "who might venture to come to you on their own merits. Miss Eva, I am not one of those fortunate few."

"No?" she queried, lifting her eyebrows, "you're your merits are by no means insignificant. They are public property, professor, and we are very proud of them down here. I have even—she looked away from him—felt a little alarmed at the thought of them sometimes and wondered whether we all seemed very stupid and dull to so learned a person as you."

"Stupid and dull!" he echoed the words involuntarily, while he was thinking what a dainty outline the contour of her cheek and chin made—like a pink saucer and with a singularly sweet fragrance about her hair.

"You agree that we are so," she said after an instant's offended silence. "You add cander to your other merits, professor, I see. Well, the school treat is over. I think I must be going homeward. Good evening."

She stretched out a small white hand. He took it and considered it for a moment.

"Do you go across the fields?" he said, "or round by the road?"

"Across the fields—when I have some one with me."

"Should I count as some one, or am I too—"

"Too what—too candid?"

"Too old," she said thoughtfully. She looked him up and down.

"I suppose that you are twice my age."

"More than that, I am sure."

"Has any one ever called you anything but professor?"

"My mother calls me John."

"Any other?"

"None, since I was a boy."

They were crossing the meadow now. In the distance Mrs. Errington waved a goodby to them. They had forgotten about her.

"Which would you rather be—yourself at your age and with your knowledge or an ignorant young person like me?"

She had taken off her hat and was dangling it by a ribbon from her arm. Her hair was all ruffled, and one little tress, with a glint of gold in it, kissed her cheek lovingly.

They had reached the stile, and he stopped to help her over it before he answered. Then he said:

"Miss Eva, do you think it is possible for any one to gather nuts and May at the same time?"

"Yes, if they get up early enough in the morning."

"What difference does that make?"

"The difference of not leaving things till they are too late."

He was still holding her hand. She gave it to him at the stile, and apparently he had not remembered to give it back. Her eyes were like stars, and there was a rose flush like day dawn on her cheeks.

"How is one to know whether it is too late or not?"

"I thought you knew everything, professor. And you called me stupid and dull just now, so my opinion can't be worth having."

"I called you stupid and dull? Do you know what I think you?"

"You think me a vain, frivolous girl."

"I think you the most perfect thing on God's earth."

"Professor?"

"I have another name, Evadine."

"When you have quite done with my hand?"

"I shall never have quite done with it. I want it for my own."

"Such a useless, silly little hand?"

"Such a plump and white little hand, like a May blossom."

He lit her to his lips, and they were silent for a moment.

"Evadine is a miracle possible?"

"What would be a miracle?" she said softly.

He drew her with gentle insistence into his arms, and she raised hers and clasped them around his neck.

"This is one," he answered; "it is the impossible come true."

"It was never impossible," she murmured, "only—you were asleep and dreaming, John, and now—day awake, and it is early in the morning."

A Hen Hunt.

An English paper says that the hen hunt is a very popular pastime in England.

"There is Evadine," she said; "how frost and cold and sweet she looks. Don't you like the professor?"

He took off his spectacles to give a consequential answer.

"Miss Evadine is always pleasant to look at," he said, as he gazed with a penetrating air in her direction; "at this distance I do not see her so plainly as I could wish."

"And she is always pleasant to talk to," added Mrs. Errington; "go and ask her if she would like some tea, professor."

When the Girls Wore Calico.

There was a time, betwixt the days of Oliver, when girls were straight and prim, And when most of them were, Leads woman captive at its whim.

Yet not a hundred years ago, When girls were gowned in calico.

Within the bairn by lantern light,

There was a real, and by Byssus feet,

The boys and girls, and all the night,

To findle measures, shirly sweet,

And merry revels were, though

The girls were gowned in calico.

Across the flooring rough and gray,

The girls were scalped, and chaff was spread,

And the feathers of chaff were spread,

Tat frangled from the lott o'er head,

Swung scented fringes to and fro

O'er pretty girls in calico.

They used to go a Maying then

The blossoms of the spring did seek,

Unweighted by fashion's latest freak,

And Robin fell in love, I know,

With Phyllis in calico.

They used to go a Maying then

The blossoms of the spring did seek,

Unweighted by fashion's latest freak,

And Robin fell in love, I know,

With Phyllis in calico.

The modern knight who loves a maid

Of grace and gentle grace, and

And his heart is strong and bold,

In shining silk and priceless lace.

Made lassies just as well, I know,

In pink and lilac calico.

The following testimonial is only one of the hundreds daily received by the Proprietors of Japanese Catarrh Cure, a well known firm of Columbians, who are engaged in extracting human humors. Catarrh is more prevalent and more difficult to treat than in other parts, makes it more valuable. Mr. James Farr, a well known writer, I have been very badly troubled with catarrh, and have been under the care of many Doctors, but in every case the catarrh caused pain. One of the first cases of Japanese Catarrh Cure, and since finishing the treatment with this remedy, when William Bentley, was also so bad with catarrh that it was very difficult to treat him, he was cured by Japanese Catarrh Cure. We keep it for sale in our store, and know that it will cure Japanese Catarrh Cure is guaranteed to cure any case of catarrh, and will be sent to any person suffering with this disease. HOMEMADE ICE BOX.

SIMPLE MAKESHIFTS FOR COMFORT IN THE HEATED TERM.

Two Easily Acquired Food Coolers which Do Very Good Work—One is Evolved From a Dry Goods Box, the Other From an Old Bureau.

Many families in the country have a supply of ice for dairy or other purposes, and would be glad to make use of this ice in keeping the food cool and fresh were it not for the expense of procuring a refrigerator, while many city and village residents would be glad to take ice from the ice men during the hot weather were it not for this same expense. In view of these facts The Ladies' World makes a timely suggestion of two simple makeshifts that are easy of acquisition, and that, while "keeping" the ice as well as the regular refrigerators, will still do very good work.

The ordinary homemade refrigerator or ice chest is depicted usually as made of two or three boxes, within which is a partition of wood or other material. It is a tedious job to fit up a "cooler" in this way, while nearly as good results can be secured much more easily. The ordinary ice chest is inconvenient since all the food and the racks or shelves must be removed every time ice is put in or a lump of ice sought for the water pitcher.

The refrigerator illustrated by Fig. 1 select a dry goods box of the size desired and remove the lower part of one end, hinging the board or boards or a partition of wood between the two. The ordinary ice chest is inconvenient since all the food and the racks or shelves must be removed every time ice is put in or a lump of ice sought for the water pitcher.

AN UNCONSCIOUS ALLY.

All's Fair In War and In Love,
Especially In Love.

I have always had a remarkably large number of friends of my own sex. Lest this should lead people to give me an undue amount of credit for amiability and sweetness of disposition I may as well state at once that I have a marriageable brother.

Being possessed also of a fair amount of brains, I was never for a moment deceived as to the nature of the affection lavished upon me by most of my female friends. But when my dearest chum, the girl I really thought loved me for myself alone, told me she was engaged to be married to my brother Fred my grief and anger knew no bounds.

I had gone over to all night with Maud and had laid awake till 3 a.m. exchanging confidences, and all the time the sneaks never said a word about Fred. At last I dropped off to sleep and was just in the midst of a glorious dream, in which I was leading the cithol with a magnificent man with sunlit eyes and a hand as cool as seven diamonds, when Maud suddenly took her arms about my neck, entirely shutting off my wind and searing me almost into nervous prostration, and with a burst of tears confessed that she had been keeping a secret from me for two whole days and that we were to be really, truly sisters, not just sisters in affection, as heretofore, etc.

I managed to wriggle out from under Maud's arms and then I sat up in bed and said things. I don't remember exactly what they were, but they must have been pretty bad, for Fred didn't speak to me for a week (of course Maud had to tell him), and Maud herself went around looking like a suffering martyr whenever we chanced be under the same roof.

I was convinced that I was the most miserable girl in the world after that, and the secret of it was that everybody, including Maud herself, thought that I was only mad because she was engaged first, an imputation which I need not say was entirely unjust.

I'm sure I could not see what Maud had done that was so wonderful anyway. Fred is anything but brilliant, and I never considered him even good looking, while as long as mamma lives he hasn't a penny to his name, except his salary, which is by no means princely.

But Maud! You'd have thought she'd landed a Vanderbilt or a poor relation the way she acted.

I pretended not to notice her airs and nursed my grief in proud silence, but I had no doubt that I was the most wretched and miserable creature that ever lived until subsequent events taught us that our affairs are arranged by an all wise Providence in such a way as to make safety, no matter how dark our way may seem at the time, I shall never doubt the wisdom of Providence again.

To begin with, I found I was likely to get a lot of amusement out of this engagement. Fred was madly jealous of Maud all the time, though any one could see half an eye that she was simply mad about him and in deadly fear of losing him herself.

He would come home at least three times a week, pale, listless and wild eyed, a man who was madly joyful and talked about Maud as if she was several degrees higher than the scrophil. It was enough to make a St. Bernard dog laugh just to see him.

I also found further consolation in the fact that his state of mind interested seriously with Fred's appetite, that I got all the extra padding and things that had always failed to his share (Fred was always a greedy thing), and then Perceval Jones came from abroad.

Perceval was a millionaire's son, with a face too beautiful for words and a taste for Ibsen.

I need hardly say that I was smart enough to treat Mr. Jones with marked coolness. The first time I met him my behavior seemed to puzzle the tampered youth. The second time he looked distinctly grateful. On the third he asked permission to call, and I went home at peace with all the world, even Fred.

For five consecutive afternoons after that I sat by the tea table in the back drawing room, attired in my best gown, and in a semi-reclining position—val.

On the sixth he came in.

"What a delightful surprise," I said gushingly. "I was a tribe nervous from waiting so long."

"Ah, thanks!" he remarked, looking disappointed.

And then Maud came in and in spite of my previous warnings I allowed myself to be led by the hand. Jones was as pale as a ghost.

"I was a tribe nervous from waiting so long."

"But then Maud came in and in

The New Way.

The ancient chief stood with his hand shading his eyes. A solitary figure was timidly creeping toward him from the jungle. Suddenly the old chief started. He took a quick step forward. "It is," he cried, "it is my son! He is coming home again!" Then with his eyes still fixed on the slouching figure he shrilly called to his head-hunter: "Mbongwa, the prodigal is returning! Kill the fatted Kafir!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Little Matter Among Friends.

Two boys were in fighting attitude like bantams; another and a smaller one stood watching them, wiping his eyes, sobbing the while.

"What did you hit him for?" said one.

"Tain't none of your business."

"Yes, it is; he's my friend."

"Well, he's my friend too!"—New York Commercial Advertiser.

LOCAL NOTICES.

Ladies will do well to attend the opening of new fall styles of millinery displayed by Miss Rennick next Thursday over the Big Store.The latest styles will be shown at the fall opening of millinery conducted by Mrs. A. Wright, St.
George street, Sept. 28 and 30.The Attorney-General's Department is making strenuous efforts to rid the provinces of the tramp fraternity, and police magistrates are instructed to deal vigorously with them instead of giving them a chance to get out of town. In a few days after the order was issued twenty-two were captured, ten of them being sentenced to six months in the Central Prison. There is no reason why the tramp should not be encouraged. With an unquenchable desire for whisky of a character whose analysis would be fatal to a druggist and a strong disinclination to labor of any description
they are as big a burden as a way tax on the sober and industrious portion of the population. Once in a while a tramp may be found who is honestly desirous of reforming, but he is a rare avised. The great majority of the hoboes would rather go without food or shelter than work for it, and consider themselves mightily ill-used if their demands for the same are not complied with. It is a noticeable fact that those towns and cities which have stone piers and yards where vagrants are forced to work for their support are troubled but little with these lazy exactions on the human family. Let the tramping brethren but once realize that throughout the provinces of Ontario they have either to work for their keep or go to jail and the farmer's wife will not be bothered with them. They have as keen a relish for work as they have for soap, and if these adjuncts of civilization are forced on them they will depart for more congenial climes.It has been suggested to the Tribune that a Board of Trade would be an excellent thing in Deseronto. There is no doubt that such an organization would be beneficial in more ways than one to the merchants and business men of Deseronto. If those interested would meet together and talk the matter over it might result in a permanent organization. Matters of public interest, which now receive but scant consideration, could be debated and anything detrimental to the welfare of Deseronto could be opposed so vigorously that the outcome would be satisfactory. Trade relations with other places could be fostered and maintained, a thing that is now left to individual effort. A feeling of mutual helpfulness such as is begotten by such an organization would help to dispel any trade jealousies that may exist.
Taken altogether the business interests of Deseronto could go farther and fare a great deal worse than if the proposed Board of Trade were a mere fantasy. Let some of the men of business get together and call a meeting, invite all men in business to attend, and a flourishing Board of Trade will surely result, to redound to the welfare of Deseronto and Deseronto's to interests.At the Toronto Industrial Exhibition this year ten valuable milch cows died suddenly. A post-mortem examination disclosed the fact that the udders of the animals had been tampered with and that milk had been injected into them, which operation resulted in the death of the animals.
The manager of one of the herds admitted that such had been the case, and that he had connived at it. The managers of the exhibition ruled the exhibitors on the grounds for one year, and withheld what prize money had been awarded to them. The exhibitors were from Pennsylvania. It would be well if such cruel practices were allowed to go unpunished.
One thing we may be sure of, and that is Canadian stockmen have too much self-respect and uprightness in their makeup to stoop to such practices.Toronto had a gala day on Monday, when Mayor Shaw opened the new city hall front door with a golden key.There were several bands in attendance and they took turns in playing appropriate selections. The mayor entertained the large concourse of people with a eloquent address of ponderous verbosity—and the ratepayers will foot the bill. Originally the mammoth structure was to be erected for about $300,000, but the final footing was found to be over two million dollars. This is a large sum of money, but the Toronto papers seem to think it is not too much for such a palatial edifice.1 When it comes tramping, whether horse or bicycle or any other old thing, Deseronto boys and horses can show their competitors how to do it. The Britannia Boys won the district trophy hands down, and at the Tamworth fair Deseronto Boys, owned by T. A.
Stewart, proprietor of the Oriental Hotel, took first money in the green race.

Death of Mrs. Shandraw.

On Sunday Mrs. Rachel Shandraw, wife of Peter Shandraw, passed away after a illness which extended over most of the summer. For the last six weeks of her life she suffered from intermittent fever, which culminated in a fit of delirium. The funeral, which was held Tuesday afternoon, was one of the largest ever held at St. Andrews Church. Rev. W. A. McIlroy, B. A.,
preached the sermon, taking as his text
the 13th verse of the 14th chapter of Revelation. The blessed dead deceased was highly respected by a large circle of relatives and friends.
She was 57 years of age.

The Flower Show.

The annual exhibition of the Deseronto Horticultural Society, held in the Hall on Wednesday evening, was a success, the display being more complete than that of last year's attendance, also, was good, despite the threatening weather. A thing to be regretted is the fact that a limited number of the exhibitors represented among the exhibitors.
Several members made the remark that if they had sent so and so they would have captured prizes. A little effort on the part of the members and this annual exhibition would be a great success.The display of cut flowers was small, but, owing to the lateness of the season and the long drought, the display was all that could be expected.Mrs. Gaylord's collection of sweet peas and petunias was, especially good.The designs by Rev. A. Grassett Smith and J. C. Bennett were admirable.George Lloyd, Napane, showed a collection of roses which were much admired, and white, red and black grapes were also well grown.

These were not for competition.

Mrs. A. H. McGaughy showed some fine specimens of geraniums and some rare plants, for which certificates were awarded.Rev. A. Grassett Smith took the president's prize for three geraniums and R. W. Lloyd took that for the best collection of window plants.The display of vegetables was

French Military Honor.

On a restaurant stool an officer sat.
In a good-sized coat and cap he sat at a pair of red trousers that looked like a quite unmistakable brandished jag.
His hat was red of the Mercier style.
His chin had a tuft, and his eyes had a squint.
That was the army of France and its honor were done to the last.More steadily he ordered and buried with shakes between drinks that he'd down with the Jew!They thought the Kaiser, the President, too, chapter the journalists, all through the world.He was a very heavy back to Neal's old boat.
The brandy had risen clear up to his throat,
As and when the floor from the chair he did light.
He wept and said, "Our honour's salute."

The Donnelly Wrecking & Salvage Co., of Kingston, have sent divers to remove the boiler and engine of the Alberta, which sank near Prince's Cove this summer.

A remarkablefeat was performed lately at the Erie basin, Brooklyn, N.Y. The steamship Richmond was on fire when it was discovered that it was found desirable to transfer the vessel to another dock. Four tugs took hold of the floating dry dock and towed it half a mile up the harbor. The 150 men at work on the boat continued at their work with no loss of time.

There is a movement on foot among senators and representatives from the states bordering on the Great Lakes to have joint Canadian and United States commission appointed to examine the possibility of maintaining the levels of the lakes in the interests of navigation. The State Department and the War Department have already considered the question, and some steps have been taken by the latter. The cause of the agitation has been the existence of several movements to cut canals at different points along the lakes.

The steamer Glengarry and Bonnokburn, both with consorts, left the M.T.C. of wharf, Kingston, on Monday, for upper lake ports. At half past ten Tuesday morning the Bonnokburn, towed with the Glengarry, became disabled when near the Ducks, and the Minnedosa, her consort, made sail, got out to line, and towed the Glengarry to the Ducks to Nine Mile Point, where they were left by the Bonnokburn. This was a remarkablefeat, and probably never equalled before. It certainly must have been a novel sight to witness a disabled steamboat being towed by a sailing vessel.

A runner was present that stamp collectors had cornered the authorities and 3-cent stamps recently issued. As nine million 3-cent stamps were "knocked down" at the bargain price of 2 cents each, the collectors have had a hen's meal job before them.

Wm. Ponton, an employee of the electric lightworks of the city, was killed while at work Monday evening. He was adjusting a large belt, and in some unknown manner was drawn into the wheels. One arm was torn from his body at the elbow and he was mortally. It took over an hour to extricate him. He died two hours later.

While threshers were working at Isaiah Onderkirk's near Chesterville, Ont., the other day, his 7-year-old son looked through a crack in the barn and saw one of them make a jab at the boards to frighten him, and the time the fork went through the crack, striking him in the eye. He was taken to a Montreal specialist, in hopes that the eye might be saved.

At Smith's Falls on Saturday night, Mrs. Blake was found dead. She had been a drunkard ever since in the house all day. Then Blake and his wife and a man named McCaw taking part in it. Blake admits having beaten her with a stick of stoneware, and claims this was not the cause of death. Blake is in custody and the police are looking for McCaw, who has disappeared.

THE PONTON TRIAL.

Commencement of This Cause
Celebrate at the Cobourg Assizes.

The trial of Wm. H. Ponton, charged with robbing the Dominion Bank at Napavine, commenced at the Fair Aspirant Cobourg on Tuesday. The courtroom, although a small apartment, was not crowded, the people of Cobourg not taking the interest in the trial that was manifested in Napavine. In his opening address for the Crown, B. B. Osler, Q.C., spoke at great length, going minutely into every phase of the case, thus indicating that the Crown was going into the case thoroughly. Forty-nine men were called as jurors and of these a selection of twelve was made.

Henry Baines, who was manager of the Napavine branch of the bank at the time the robbery took place, gave a full description of the bank building. He said the amount taken was $23,000, and that $10,000 of this was unsigned $10 bills. On the eve of the trial he received a message from Ponton to the effect that the safe could not be opened. An expert from Toronto was sent for and he opened the safe.

On Wednesday morning John Roach, on behalf of the bank in custody to the court as an accomplice, decided to turn Queen's evidence.

Several witnesses were examined in an effort to locate Pare Holden, Roach and Mackie, at the time the bank robbery took place.

Holden, the self-styled bandit, was put on the witness stand.

He testified that he met Mackie in Montreal, where they discussed the proposed robbery, and witnesses arrangements to go to Napavine, where he witness said Ponton wanted to see him. He met Ponton in the Paisley House. Ponton agreed to mark a cross on the safe door where the centre bolt of the door entered the safe. Holden then told Ponton to drill when he entered the bank. There was an understanding that Ponton was to leave the key of the back-door of the bank underneath the door, but the witness could not find it there. Holden and about a second visit to the bank when they were successful in bungling it.

The principal witness of the day was John T. Roach, who testified that he entered the witness stand of his own volition, and that he had not been promised any indemnity from punishment on account of doing so. He said Holden had first intimated to him that the Napavine bank could be robbed without much effort. He described the attempts made to burglarize the place and concluded the testimony given by Holden in almost every particular. He said Pare had made a key to the safe. The witness spoke of the many plans of the gang, one of which was to hold up Durant, the ledger keeper of the bank, but this was abandoned on account of the difficulty connected with it.

Chief Adams of Napavine, identified several articles, among them the combination key and the brass key found in the cellars after Pare's confession.

George Wilkes, a Pinkerton detective, testified as to the search made of Ponton's room. He had found a deposit slip on which was the impression of a key. The key from which the impressions were made was one which opened Mr. Baines' compartment in the ledger. The detective said a key could be made from the impression on the paper.

Inspector Greer said a key could be made from such an impression as that of the slip of paper found in Ponton's room.

Mrs. McGehee testified to hearing alarms in Ponton's room on the night of the bank robbery.

It is expected that the testimony will be in before the end of the week.

Disciples of Old Isaac.

One day this week, while the rain was falling, a number of people, including Mr. and Mrs. Earl Chapman, Wm. Stoddart, Miss Maggie Stoddart and Mr. Oliver arrived at Frankford, determined to snare the crafty image from the bed of the Trent. As to what an kingly appearance he speaks veraciously next week. The old man there and good-sized ones at that. The first day's sport was interfered with to a great extent by the downpour of rain.

OF ANISEED

Never
Failsto cure Coughs, Colds,
Bronchitis, and to relieve
Asthma, Whooping Cough

In the winter of 1894 I contracted a severe cold which settled on my lungs, and tried several remedies without success. I heard of Skinner's Balsam, and the first bottle I took was a miracle. I have since recommended it to many, and it has not only immediately relieved me, but a few bottles have done the same for others.

LOOK UP!

Our fathers to their graves have gone.
Their strife is past—their trumpet was.
But steel and trials wait the issues—
A mortal warfare with the demons—
And folly of an evil time.So let it be. In God's own might
We gain it for the coming night.
And, strong in him whose cause is ours,
In conflict with unyielding power,
We grasp the weapons he has given—
The light and trust and love of heaven.

—Whittier

St. Sylvestre.
He Made Up His Mind
Too Late.

On the night of the 31st of December my friend Jacobus, after having dined in silence at the table of the Golden Rose, retraced with quick steps Grangettes street, where his bachelor lodgings were.

The street was solitary and badly lighted by a faroff gas jet. The north wind, blowing directly between the two rows of black facades, cut Jacobus' nose and, notwithstanding the close buttoned overcoat, made our friend shiver. The blood of 40 years did not possess the warmth of prime youth. Therefore did he agitate with an impatient hand the hammer which decorated the landlady's door.

It was the daughter of the house, Mlle. Franklin Bigard, who opened to him, smiling, in one hand the told of her sweet chestnuts, and in the other the lamp which lighted up her face and her sparkling blue eyes.

Those blue eyes, that frizzily brown hair and the bright smile of Mlle. Franklin still gave an attractive pliancy to her face, although she was commencing to fade, having attained her twenty-eighth year on St. Catherine's day.

"I beg your pardon for having made you wait," said she to the shivering lodger, "but I was in the act of splitting chestnuts. We have kept two of my friends to supper, and tonight we will end the year by roasting the chestnuts and washing them down with a glass of Fignolette. At your service, M. Jacobus."

"Thank you," answered he, appearing in a hurry. "Thanks, mademoiselle."

If he refused, it was not that Françoise's company was displeasing to him, on the contrary. But he kept himself in the foreground, and the under obligation to this girl who wanted to marry and not wishing that too much familiarity should make him slip, little by little, on dangerous ground.

He was not insensible to the blue eyes and to the smile of the young lady, but he was afraid of marriage. He resembled those children who are about to take a cold bath, who dip one foot in the water, then take it out again and cannot decide to take a final plunge.

"Thanks," said he again on going up the stairs. "No letters have come for me?"

"No, M. Jacobus, the mail carrier has

"Well, I suppose I'm forgotten," said he, as he put the key in the keyhole. "The entire world has forgotten the way to my house."

Jacobus felt himself become, little by little, in a fit of bad temper. This night everything had gone wrong. The logs on the fire smoked instead of flaming; his lamp flickered without giving light; a drafty wind passed under the door and froze him to the marrow.

"I'm a fool—Joubert, I believe," mused he, as he lit his pipe— "has said that the evening of his life he will bring the 2d of February."—From the French of Andre Theuriet For New York Press.

"I unshaded my shoulders and kept on my way laughing at the pell-mellness of that middle age, and this is what I have come to! The least pebble disturbs me, the most childish difficulty takes the proportions of an impossibility. I know no more how to dare or to will, and I retire to my bachelor cell re-gretting the chance that I let slip at the moment when my heart yearned for all its freshness."

At that moment the echo of young voices came from below, and in this gay noise Jacobus could distinguish Françoise's clear laugh.

"They are amusing themselves down stairs," thought he again, with a sigh. "They are drinking to the year that is passing and to the one that will be born."

"For them a year that passes away and to me that begins does not awaken melancholy thoughts. They are not yet at the age when the weeks and the months seem to go by with the rapidity of a swallow on the wing. They will come to it nevertheless, and to Françoise as well as to the others! She is going on to her twenty-eighth year and has not yet found a husband. Poor girl! Little by little her cheeks will fade, those blue eyes will lose their brightness, her laugh will change those clear notes for sharp and dry intonations, and she also will know the loneliness of a celibatist, the regret of chances that have flown away and the fear of ripe age. Oh, the old maids! I pity them even more than the old bachelors!"

"The prison of isolation. And for them more obscure and more narrow. The world is more severe. The quick blood may groan in their heart as a woman does in her womb, when she is in travail. Thus charming girls fade away, and that is what will happen to Françoise unless a brave fellow makes his appearance who is loving enough and courageous enough to transplant in a warm medium this pretty plant."

"But then, miserable one, since thou understandest so well all these things, why art thou not that brave fellow? Thou art tired of thy frozen foyer. Why dost thou not make of her a happy and joyous mate?"

"Ah! There it is, precisely. I do not know any more how to dare!"

While he was immersed in these black and disenchanted ideas Jacobus was losing the notion of the exterior phenomena. A chill which ran along his back brought him back to reality. He perceived that his fire was consumed without throwing out any heat; that his pipe was badly cold and that his window was badly closed. Just as he was about rising to look at it he heard a new joyful sound come from the first door, and new silvery laughter from Françoise struck his ears. He had still a moment of hesitation; then the cold of this December night decided him. He blew out his lamp and descended, feeling his way down the staircase, and, guided by the laughter, he knocked timidly at the landlady's door.

The door opened wide, and by the bright light he saw around the fireplace a circle of young people busy peeling chestnuts.

"My faith!" said Jacobus. "I heard your laughter up stairs, and it made my mouth water. Will you make room for me at your side, Mlle. Françoise?"

And then, in sending a tender look toward Françoise, he saw all of a sudden that that place was taken. A young man of about 30 years, a forster, was seated on the same bench with the young girl and was very close.

"With a smile, he said to his great advantage a chair: "Come near me, M. Jacobus; I'm going to give you some news. We are killing two birds with one stone. We are feasting the St. Sylvestre, and we are toasting the betrothal of our Françoise, Buffalo, N. Y."

A good, practical home medical work is invaluable. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is such a book. It contains 1000 pages and 90 illustrations, and is a valuable addition to any library. It is a good book for any woman to have, and I will recommend them to you."—"I never feel any pain," he said, "but I stand too long. Before I commenced to use the medicines I could hardly walk across the room. I have been sick off and on for two years, and the doctor's medicines did not help me. Of course it is not the best medicine, but it is a good one. I have had a awful burning in my stomach at times; no appetite, was thin, constipated, and exercised little, causing pain. I took the medicine and was comforted. I am now in fine fettle."

"Words fail to describe my suffering before I took your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' Favoured by the 'Golden Pleasure'—I wrote Miss Julia S. Hovey, N. H., "I have been greatly benefited by the use of your medicine and I will recommend them to you."

"I must not forget of the most simplified toilet of the Barozi, the pocket handkerchief. This consists of a thin blade of iron, finely wrought, with the handle of the same material. The whole is perhaps four or five inches long by one or two inches wide, and is hung round the neck by vegetable fibers or tendons. In blowing their noses they use it as a spring with extreme dexterity, which I can say from experience is not a pleasant thing at a camp fire."—The Kingdom of the Barozi?

Gallantry of Ambrose Bierce.
No one made any remark upon the temerity of the ladies who invited Ambrose Bierce to deliver a lecture before the members of their club. Undaunted by his reputation they fearlessly hearded the lion in his den, a committee extending an invitation verbally.

Bierce was so taken aback by the unexpectedness of the request that, to his own surprise, he found himself weakly accepting the bid and then humbly consulting his callers concerning the topic upon which they might desire him to speak.

The president, a dignified and very conservative lady, in reply to a novel suggestion of the lecturer elect, remarked somewhat loftily that, "they were not a club of new women."

"I am convinced of that!" answered Mr. Rathbun, and said with a confidential tone, which almost but not quite concealed his cynicism. "Shall I say you are a club of old women?"—San Francisco News Letter.

Since, maybe you've heard the storm shrub within bough in March.

Before there's a primrose peeping out in April, the sun is bright.

Wishin' the sun to come out of the cloud.

At the wind to come over the sea,

But for all we can while to clear an load,

It's never the bird for me.

Since, maybe you've seen a song thrush

Within the rain in April,

Up from under the dripping leaves,

Wishin' to sing again;

Or, the sun when he's near the nest,

Up from the top of the tree,

But for all we can fatter the heart in your breast,

It's never the bird for me.

Since, maybe you've heard the chahado

Calling his mate in May.

When one sweet thought is the whole of his life,

It's never the bird for me.

Since, maybe you've seen a song thrush

Within the rain in April,

Up from under the dripping leaves,

Wishin' to sing again;

Or, the sun when he's near the nest,

Up from the top of the tree,

But for all we can fatter the heart in your breast,

It's never the bird for me.

Since, maybe you've heard the red breast

Singin' on a lime on a tree,

Mindin' hisself of the dear days lost,

Draw in his heart for me.

The time is in dark November,

Remember," he sings, "remember!"

Aye, then's the we bird for me.

At Last!

A Remedy has been discovered that will permanently cure Cataract.

This is not merely the words of the makers of this remedy, but the assertion is backed up by at least a physician and a hundred thousand men of all creeds of every race. And more, there is an absolute guarantee to cure in every case. The manufacturer of this Japanese Cataract Cure has also sent a two weeks trial quantity free to any physician who wants to try it. This Japanese Cataract Cure is a new discovery, being a prescription perfected by one of the leading physicians of Japan in curing cataract diseases. It is a soothing, penetrating and powerful compound of the best known compounds of Iodine and Essential oils, to be inserted up the nostril. The heat of the body makes the nostril act like a pump, drawing it to the diseased part. It reaches soothes and cures in a few days, and cures in curing invariably all forms of cataract of the nose and throat, and all forms of catarrhal disease. Price $1.00. Send for a sample to Dr. Miller of Fort Langley, B.C., writes: "I have a case of cataract in my eye, and of cataract, which has troubled me for 25 years, during which time I had spent over $1,000 on various cures, and when I called on Dr. Miller, he told me to take this Japanese Cataract Cure, and I recovered in a few days. I have since been using it, and have not felt the slightest symptoms of my former trouble. I shall be grateful to you to send me a sample of this Japanese Cataract Cure. We always keep a supply on hand for our patients, and it is superior to any other remedy for healing." Send by all druggists, 50 cents. Sample free. Enclose 3 cent stamp. Address, Dr. Miller & Macpherson Co., 15 Church Street, Victoria.

UNTO THE END.

I know not where tomorrow's path may lead. Nor what the future holds, but this I know. Whatever way my feet are forced to go, I shall go on, and go on, and go on.

Through life that aortal gift of his may send. I shall walk long, when happiness in a row hide all of happiness, yet be it so;

I shall give no courage to the end.

If dark the deepening shadows be that blind. With life's pale sunlight when the sun dips low.

Though joy speeds by and sorrow's steps are slow,

I shall give no courage to the end.

No, I do not question what the years portend—

Or good or ill whatever may blow;

It is enough, enough for me to know.

I shall be given courage to the end.

A LITTLE BIT OF A DARKY.

He Told His Story Well and Kept His Reward.

He was a little bit of a darky, not much bigger than a lump of coal and not much brighter, and when I called him up to do an errand for me across the street his eyes snapped as if they were electrified.

"What is your name?" I inquired.

"Tank boss," he answered, with a bow and a grin.

"That's a queer kind of a name. Your people aren't temperance folks, are they?"

"Deed, boss, I dunno. Dey calls me my name's Pasquotank Perquimans."

I laughed. "That's name enough for two kids like you. Where do you come from?"

"Ise fum Nefr Ca'Iny, boss."

He stopped a moment to study.

"How much have you made today?"

"When I gets de 10 cents you's gwinter gib me," he said, with a shrewd little smile—I had not agreed upon a price at all—"an I gets 10 cents fum 'em de nev' gem'man it'll make 20 cents, boss."

"Is that all? You can't live on 20 cents a day, can you?"

"Doin' the best I kin, boss."

A LIVELY OLD SHARK

WE MADE RAPID TIME FROM MONTEVIDEO TO PERNAMBUCO.

The Fast Sounds Incredible, but the Orator at the Liars' Club Told a Circumstantial Story and Displayed a Souvenir of the Event.

"The speed attained by south Atlantic sharks in their efforts to arrive at desired points within the least possible space of time," said No. 18, who used to be in the navy and is now a clerk in the navy department, addressing the last meeting of the Washington Liars' club, "has long been a subject of scientific investigation. I don't know the exact number of knots they have been found to make within the space of an ordinary four hour watch, but if a south Atlantic shark can't beat an albatross when it comes to speed I'll eat my bag and hammock and ditto box."

"Now, these sharks down in the south Atlantic, that don't like to find themselves too far from the equator, the waves, and yet they want to have plenty of room to prove. They've got the temperature of water that suits them best figured out to a nicely, and they know that on the other side of the equatorial line there's just as good water and water of the same degree of temperature, as that in which they're fooling around when they get to thinking on this subject."

"Well, what do they do when they get to worrying over the cramped spaces in which they find themselves on one side of the line or the other? Why, they just swim across the line. That's all. They know that the equatorial line is a trick of nature; that's a heap too hot for their constitutions and that they can't stand monkeying around in the water on that line too long, and so they just hop over it, lickety split, so fast that you can't see their fins for dust."

"I remember once, when I was on the old Ticonderoga, a thing happened that gave us a line on the speed of sharks when they take it into their port of Montevideo one morning at 10 o'clock. It was on a Monday, April 12. Montevideo harbor is full of sharks, and the men forward got worried over the side for them in order to get them ashore to make walking sticks of them. One huge man eater was landed after great difficulty with the combined strength of the whole watch on deck, and he had to be clubbed with belaying pins and capstan bars for an hour before he gave up and cashed in."

"We cut him open, and, gentlemen, when you suppose we found inside of him? Why, as fine a gold watch and chain as you ever saw in your life! Not an ordinary minute and second hand watch, but one of those watches that give the date, the day of the week, the phases of the moon and the whole thing. Well, sirs, you can imagine our astonishment when we

The Widow.
It is said by an Aitchison cynic that as soon as a woman is a widow she loses all pretensions of purpose and can be turned out of the house just as easily as a turncock on a farm. The woman will die at it, but a woman who has once had a husband to do the deciding is at a disadvantage when she has no one to blame the way.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS

GRETNA.

TYNDINAGA RESERVE.

Richard Hill, of Rochester, N. Y., has been visiting friends on the Reserve during the past week.

The recent rains have loosened the earth and plowing is the order of the day.

The vicinity of the fort has a very attractive appearance with its numerous camps. The number of men under canvas is about 225. They are all a fine lot of fellows, courtesy and civility seem to be their main instinct. They are always ready to impart any information in their line and out of it in Her Majesty's service.

The list of families who are affected, by their dwellings being near the range and consequently having to leave there.

That's all. They know that the equatorial line is a trick of nature; that's a heap too hot for their constitutions and that they can't stand monkeying around in the water on that line too long, and so they just hop over it, lickety split, so fast that you can't see their fins for dust.

"Now, all that anybody who doubts this has got to do is to find out to find out how many thousand miles Pernambuco is from Montevideo to measure the scale on the atlas of South America. That shark only hit the high places in jumping from Pernambuco to Montevideo, and if there's any doubt of this you can just lay it to me, boy, that the shark's spine," and No. 18 of the Liars' club held up a 25 cent medallion stick.

The quarterly medal was bestowed upon No. 18 by unanimous vote—Washington Star.
